Strathcona Composite High School

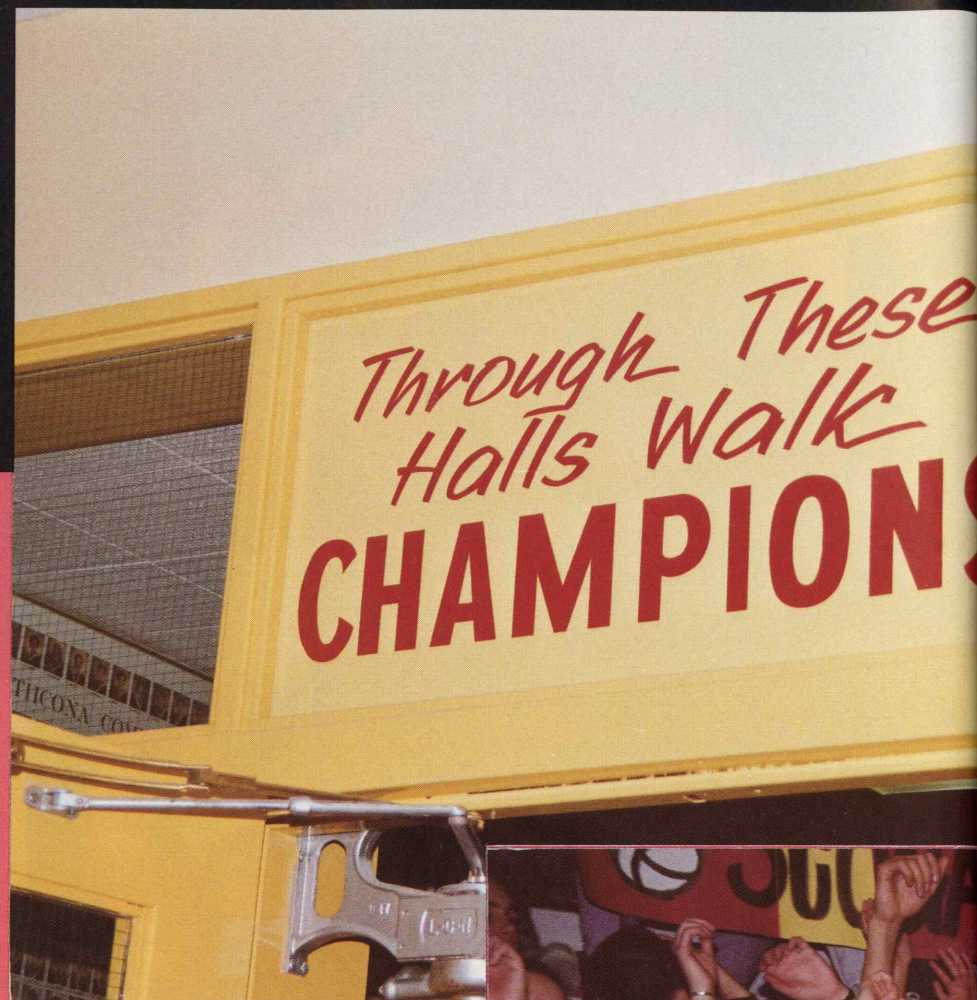

*10450-72 Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta
(403) 439-3957
Population: 1352*

Coming up with a suitable theme is, in itself, probably the most challenging task facing a yearbook editor. We knew that it had to be something which reflected our desire to change and refresh some of the creative aspects of the book, while keeping mind that tradition is an important part of our school as well. Tradition "+" was chosen because it emphasizes the aspects of Scona on which we wanted to focus, that is, on our reputation for excellence (which is, without doubt, the tradition by which we are known), but also on the fact that there are numerous other "pluses" here.

As all Scona Lords know, the traditions at our school are many and are faithfully upheld by all. Second in the city academically, number one in the world in track and field, first in cross-country, continuing a newer dynasty in swimming, volleyball, cheerleading . . . Of course, we are also "the friendly school"; students past and present comment on the supportiveness of our atmosphere, and the uncommon ability of the people here to interact well with their peers. And let us not forget how much school spirit and school pride the Lords have, and always have had!

"And there's even more to Scona?" you may ask. Yes! In addition to our athletic and academic strengths, other elements also help make this the place to be. You, for example. You're a plus. Every year a different group of people passes through the halls, attends the classes, gets involved in the clubs and on the teams. As the combinations of people change, different things become possible from year to year, and different things are accomplished. Our recycling program, for example, is a relatively "90's" installment that hasn't interrupted the traditional ambience. And while we're on an environmental topic, this yearbook is printed on recycled paper. The newly renovated cafeteria and swimming pool deserve mention, too.

Scona's yearbook was also given a name this year.

"Animus is a Latin word meaning the center of thought, learning, intellect and pride. The life force of a person is his animus. Individuals enthusiastically giving their energy and ideas to the school have created Scona's unique and envied spirit." — the Strathcona Animus, 1975

What better way to describe our traditions and our "pluses"?

The "+": Our teams certainly don't lack support! Painting faces, donning scarlet and gold and cheering as loudly as possible comprise but one of the favorite activities of the spirited Lords.

The sign says it all: Traditional and distinctive red and yellow signs have inspired the thousands of students who have passed through our hallways. And isn't it the truth?!

Getting greener: A plus. The incinerator in the basement that was used in the past to burn uncountable tonnes of garbage (imagine the pollution!) and old lab specimens will be removed.

Proud pennants: The Scona Room, above the Michener entrance, is where many of the historical records, photos, and awards are kept on display.

The New Addition

Finally we have reached High School after nine long years of preparation. Now, as Mr. Yeske would say, we are getting ready for Big School — three more years here and then four, six, eight more at University? At least now in Sr. High we are treated like real people (real people who can eat in class!). The annoying grade sevens and eights have been replaced with 1300 new faces.

The joys of catching the bus at 7:00 in the morning while standing in a bus shelter that is dark, and -30°C at best, are discovered. We arrive at school only semi-thawed, to sit through a LONG eighty-minute class, and go from frozen to numb with exhaustion. To break some of the boredom, the high school phenomena of the spare is discovered. They seem to interrupt the monotony quite nicely. In grade ten, some would argue that you don't really need a spare, but after running the dreaded "L" in Phys.Ed. 10, one definitely does need to recuperate.

While rejuvenating ourselves, we can visit with our friends from last year and all the new people we have met from all over the city. Many students say that the best thing about Scona is that everyone gets along — Scona is one big family, instead of a lot of little cliques.

The first Pep Rally introduces us to the Scona-Ainlay rivalry. After seeing the Titan effigy being shot, chopped up and then kicked across the gym by a member of the volleyball team for their annual slaying, we are glad we chose Scona.

Only two more years to go!

Heidi Noble

Being short does have its advantages ... for others! Sherry Benson protests being stuffed into her locker.

"Maybe if I concentrate hard enough all of this will disappear." Jason Harcus squirms as he eats his lunch in the hall.

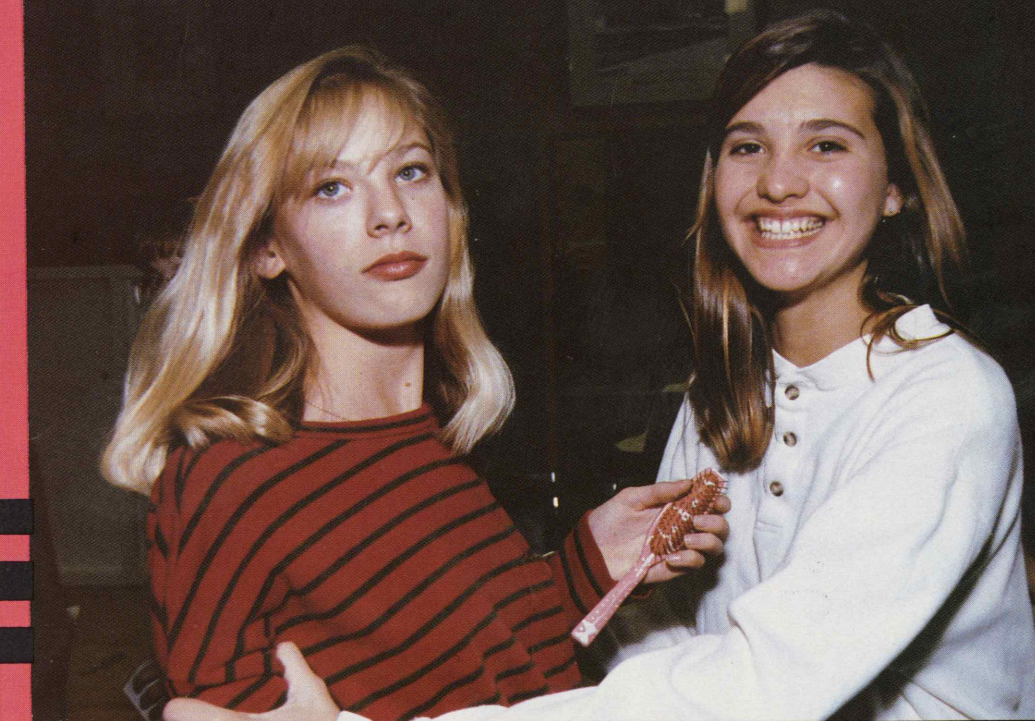

The art of balancing takes heavy concentration. Jason Sather is caught apple headed in the hall.

Jessica Demas and Lara Ritchie make themselves beautiful while waiting in the Scona Room for picture retakes.

Another Pavarotti is born! Katie McKee stretches her vocal cords during lunch.

Another one bites the dust. The camera stare hits again, the victim, James McCrae. "The only cure is to lock you in the Phys.Ed. change rooms!"

In the Middle — But We Still Count

"I just don't want to be here!" is what you will hear out of most students in grade eleven. After ten years of attending school, the "burn-out" starts to hit. The solution most of us come up with is, "I just won't be here!" Skipping was a phrase coined in grade eleven.

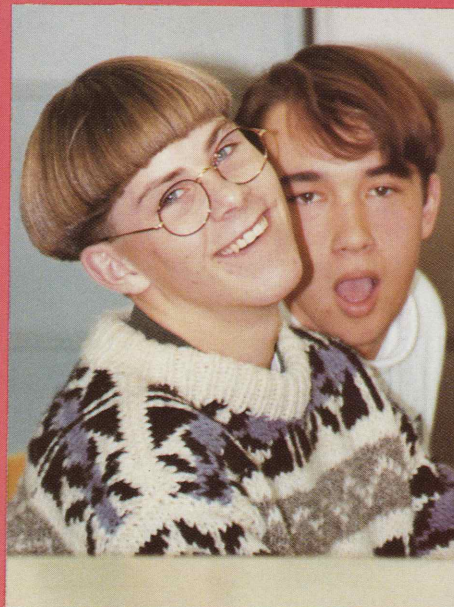

The enlightening CALM class graced all of our timetables. This was a class that everyone, even smart kids, wanted to skip. The worst part was, that at the end of the term you found that for every CALM class you skipped, two percent was taken off your mark. From this shock, the advice, "Take it by correspondence," was passed down to the grade tens.

Registration day we met again with our Scona "family", and rushed upstairs to grab the hallowed lockers on the top floor. Those of us who forgot to come a few hours early ended up downstairs again. Another upside to grade eleven was that you were no longer a rookie on the sports teams. Hopefully you had also figured out that there was more to Scona than track, and started to join one of the many other teams or clubs. After all, you had to find something to help the 324 school days left to go a bit faster! To quote a former Scona student, Noah Gellner, "That was grade eleven? I must have been drunk."

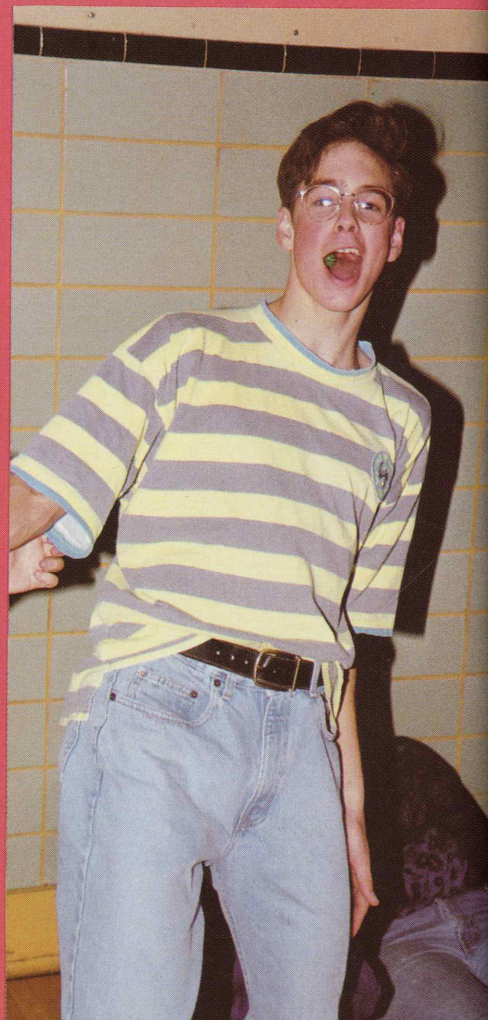

One more year to go. Aughhhhh!

Look at this face! Miriam Berg, Konrad Komuniecki, and Nairn Richards.

"I'm out of here!" Ward Campanelli struggles to escape the camera.

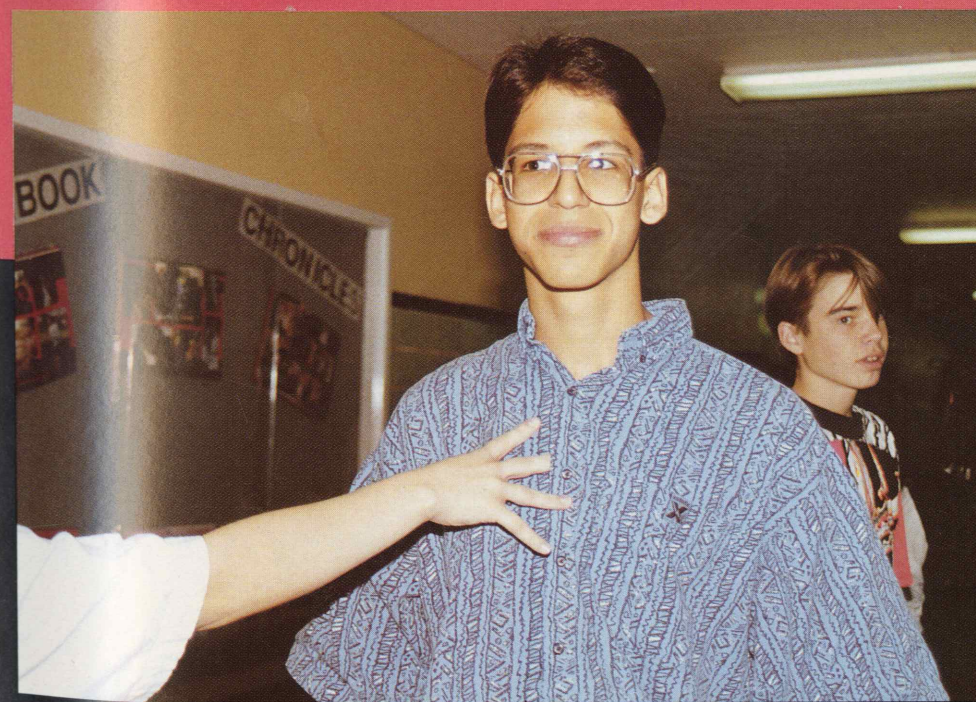

Go Faster! Becky Gokiart cruises the hallways in style — thanks to Sarah Kessick.

Drac at work: "We were only dancing!" insists Jeff Lin.

Da, Da Da, DAA! Coral Bergen just tuning her latest instrument.

Best of Buds: Tamara Rossman and Michelle Baloun sell muffins to raise money for the cheerleaders.

In a daze: Rob Davies tries to ignore an oncoming fan.

The "Experienced" Pluses

Finally we have reached grade twelve, but only to find that it is not the golden year we thought it might be. The cycle of sleep, eat, study . . . sleep, eat, study . . . never seems to end, and there never seems to be enough hours in a day to do all that we want to do. In grade eleven to try and take a break from the stress, we would have skipped. We find out too soon that if you skip a class in grade twelve, you can get so far behind that you regret it for weeks. Even if we do try to do something at lunch time, we find ourselves in the library; and even there, all we want to do is nap.

For some, next year contains the prospect of endless time to sleep, or to travel, or to choose what we want to do.

For others it promises freedom, but we are not sure what or where these freedoms should be: University, a college, here in Edmonton or across the country? Grade twelve is definitely a year of decisions and deadlines.

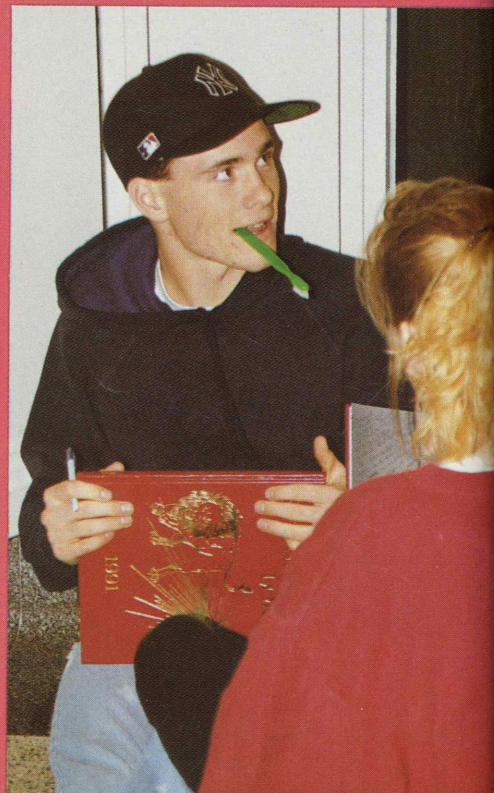

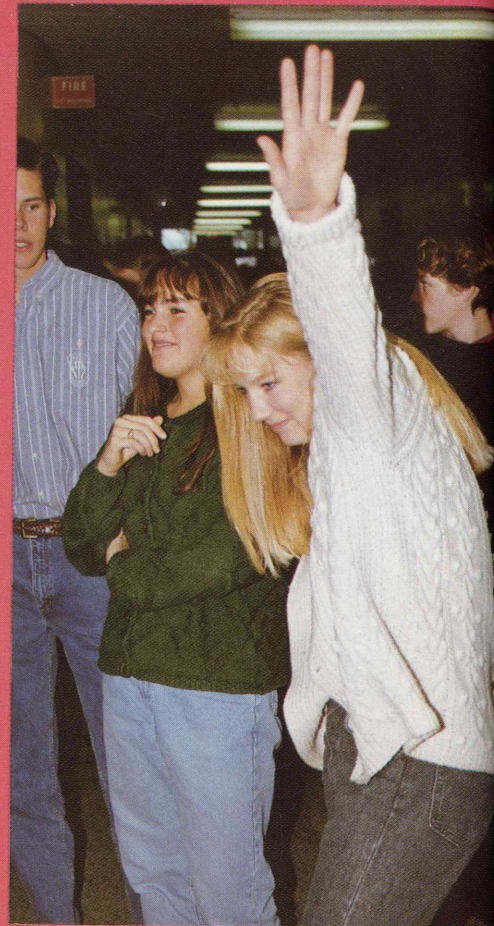

To celebrate all of our hard work, the anticipation of Grad started in September with the Grad Council elections. The frustrating and endless search for a Grad dress (and a date!) began. The idea of being on our own is scary, but it is what we have worked towards for the past twelve years — and it is here!

During lunch, Jill Assaly and Colin Nanka watch with amusement as Julia Yates does her Michael Jackson moves in the hall.

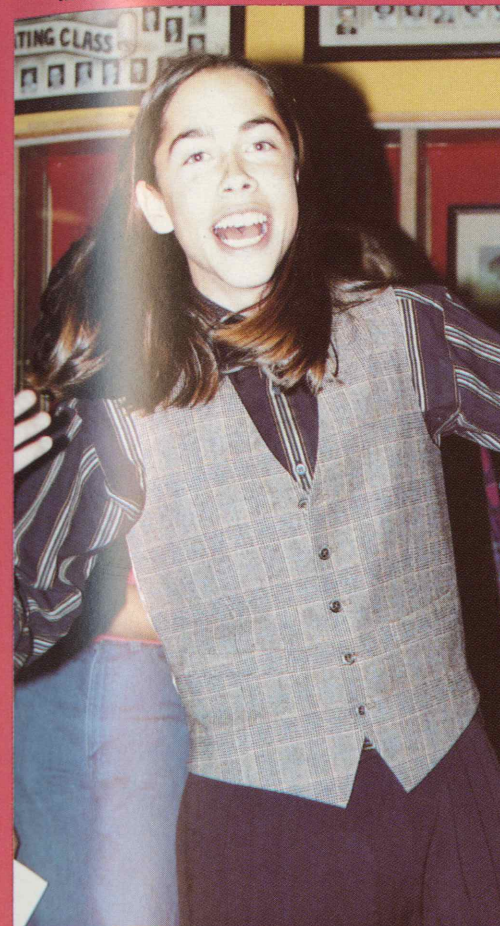

As you wish, Mademoiselle: Scott Harvey plays with Jessica Russell's shoelace for entertainment during lunch.

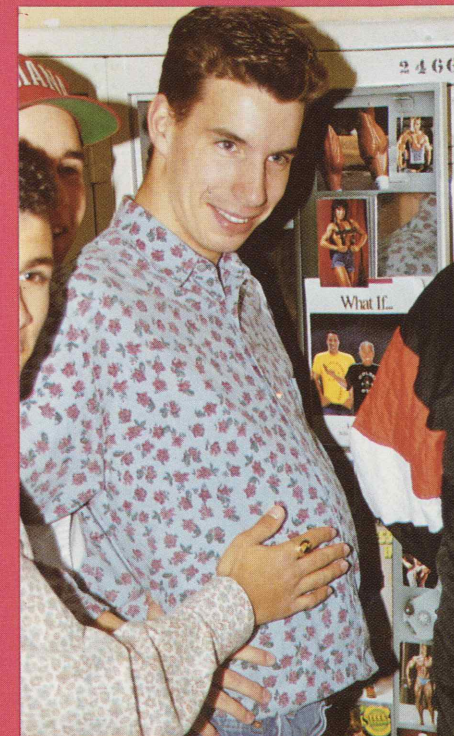

Wrong end! Karl Harrison signs yearbooks in the hall.

The center of attention, Matt Dobbs goofs off in the Scona Room.

Ah, fatherhood: Craig Simmons gets a "hands-on" experience of pregnancy.

It's coming to me! Ron Depner tries to focus on his mathematics.

Yes, only 5 dollars . . .! Heather Schurman takes time out for a raspberry drink.

Imagine Life Without Them

Who laughs with you at a stupid joke? Who makes you feel better when you're gloomy? The answer is obvious — friends! We spend so much time with our friends, and it would be impossible to live without them . . . but imagine for a moment that you didn't have any.

In the morning you would walk into Social, late again, and there would be no one to say, "Hey, way to go sleepyhead," or, "My, we're early today!" At lunch you'd go to the cafeteria to get some fries. Who would laugh at the big drip of ketchup on your new white shirt? And, who would wander the halls with you to watch for members of the opposite sex while you all tried to look non-chalant?

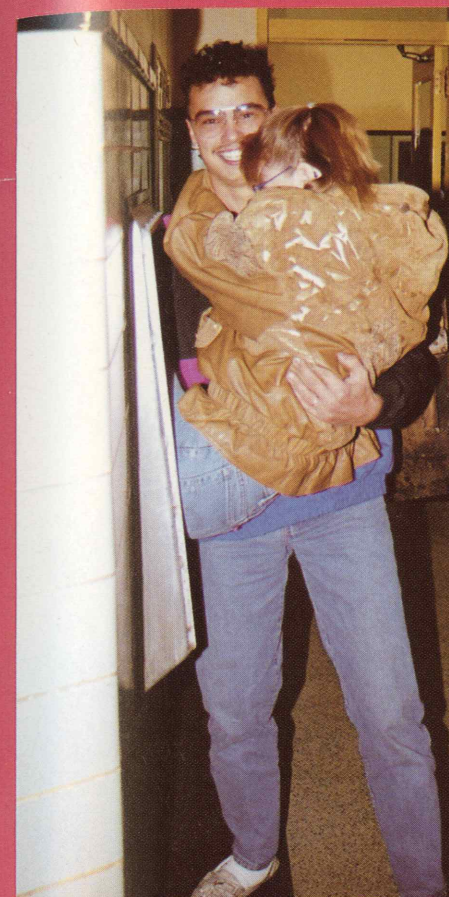

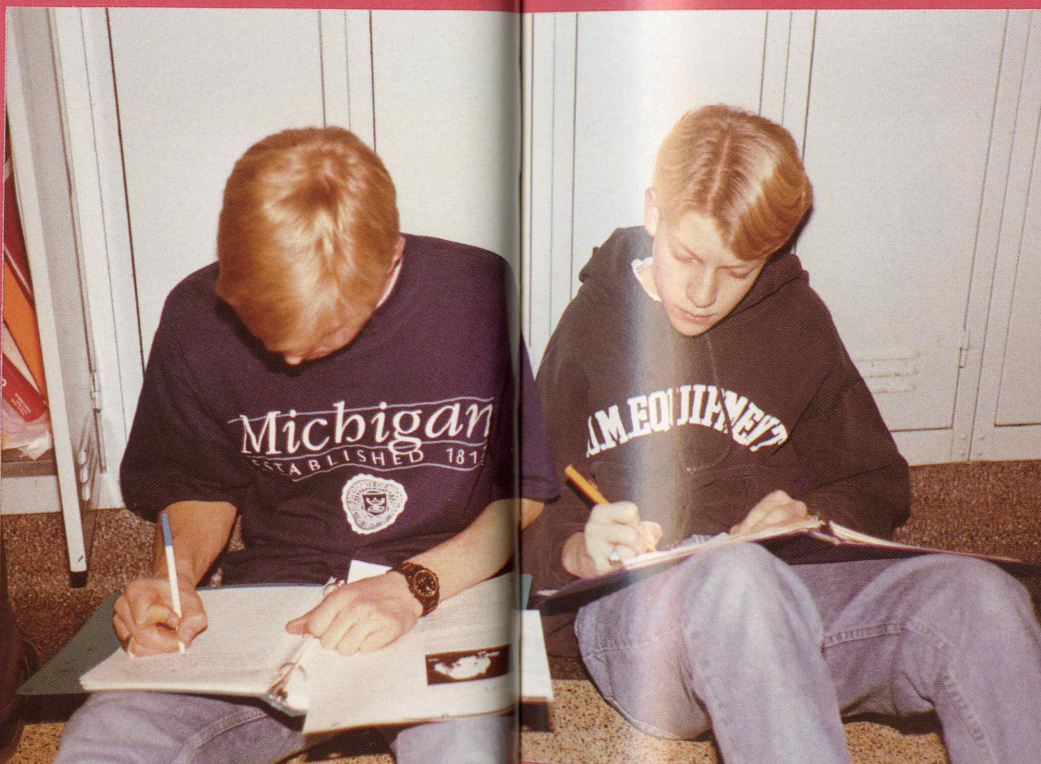

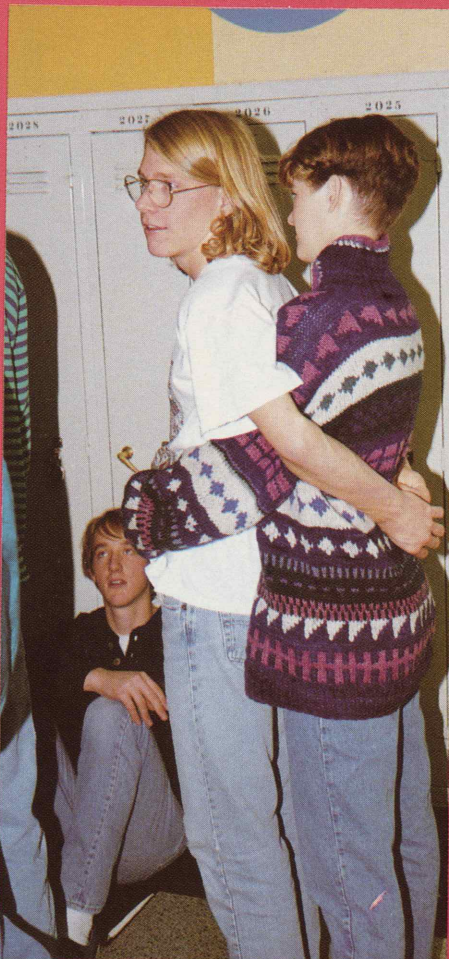

Friends are easy to talk to, and can often tell what you are thinking even if you don't tell them. You can share your most exciting and personal secrets with them without worrying that they will tell. They are people you can freeze your butt with when you decide to walk to Whyte Ave. in your shorts and undone jacket even though it's -30°C.

Yes, a true friend is priceless, even more so than that brand new car. And we can't live without them.

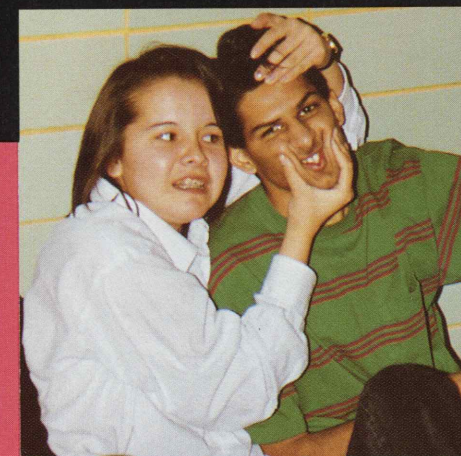

Jenifer Horvath.

Jaws — the return! Vickie Tsirekas helps Caroline Barnicoat as she prepares for her debut as a shark in the pep rally.

How do we get out of this? Jen Sulkers and Mike Underschultz tie themselves into a human knot.

Up, up and away! Steve Boyd attempts to stuff Heather Weir into a dumbwaiter.

That's what friends are for: Wanda Irons practices face stretching on Rob Sandhu.

Tracy Watson, Christine Kowalek and Jessica DeMars help Dawn Chabot along after a strenuous trip to the Mac's, while Jennifer Wells offers advice and Kyle Chong just laughs.

How long until class starts? C.J. Carlyle and Jason Peters hurriedly finish their English homework at lunch.

Beyond Classes

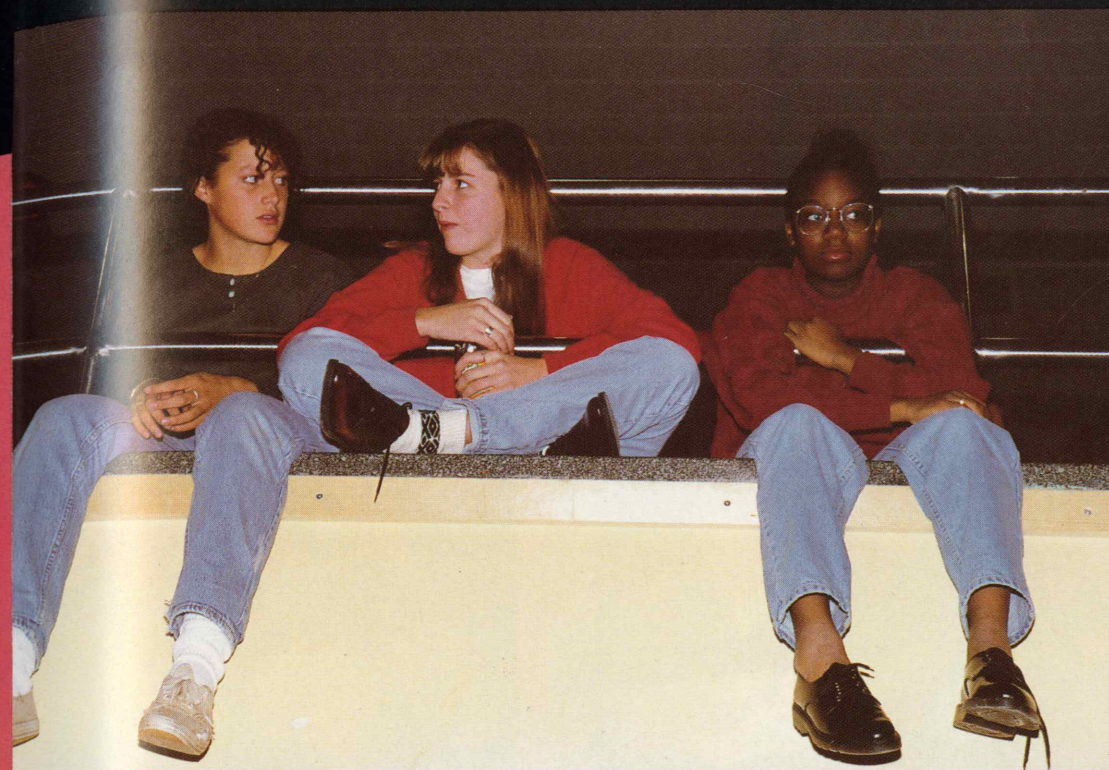

For those of us who have cultivated procrastination to a creative art, loafing and relaxing comes as a natural occupation. From the wandering glances at our locker neighbours hastily gathering their books for the class that you intend to be late for, to fourth block window gazing and sketching captions of caffeine wrenched faces, the ideology of loafing saturates our thoughts and becomes the "intellectual" motivation. The advent of a "spare" gives opportunity to demonstrate our relaxation capabilities, especially in the library (which seems to be louder than the cafeteria). Here, one can fiddle restlessly and gallivant in light gossip, turning all faculties to ignoring the crime of work. Some students theorize that what makes the young young is that youth has the ability to enjoy its times, and in the midst of oppressive work can find ways to divert the attention to meaningless pleasures. The halls of Scona provide practical application. Teachers grab your coffee mugs and sneak out for a smoke, students don your shades, else the day pales with warrant work while joy in living fades.

Yoga? Carrie Willes gets a new perspective of what our hallways look like while utilizing a strong sense of balance.

Dennis Staniland.

Zzzzzz ... High School demands much of its students — mentally and physically. Jodi Kirk and Damara Sylvester gear up for the next class.

What a view! Sitting on the edge of the bleachers directly over the gym floor gives Allison Griffin, Kara Hurtig, and Marsha Walters a better look at what's down below.

Fresh air! Sometimes one just needs to get away from a hectic school schedule. Cam Nelin enjoys the autumn sunshine.

Hey, Look at this! This pair sure isn't working on an English assignment. Chris Contardi and Marc Lemieux enjoy a few yucks at the expense of Archie and the gang.

Grumble, Grumble . . . Lunch!

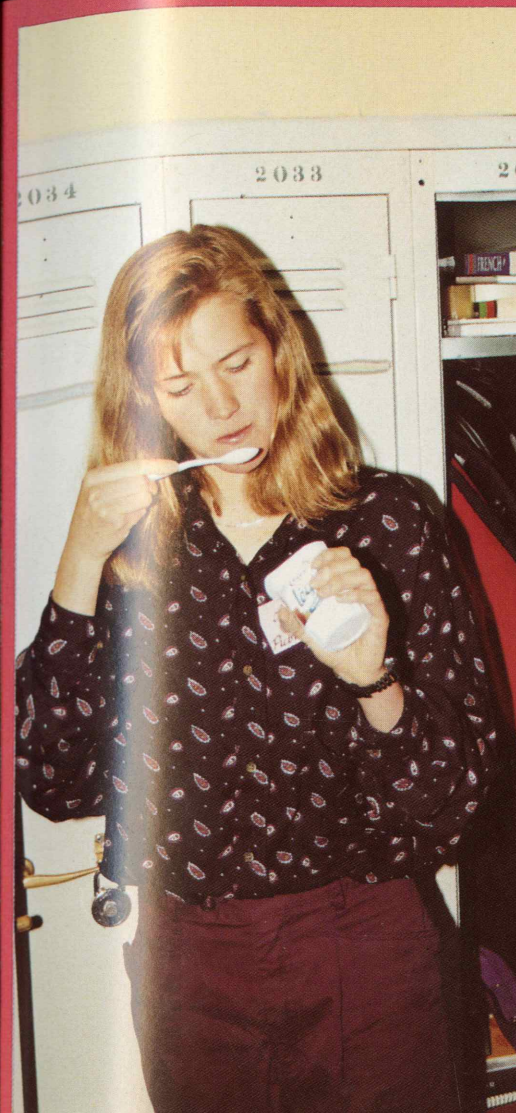

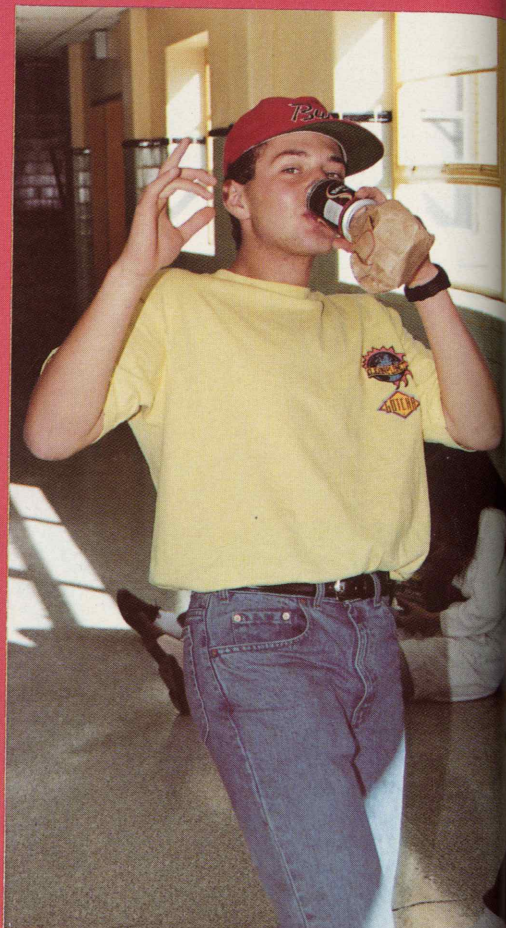

As everyone waits to stampede into the new cafeteria, Mark Ewanchuk and Jessica Asch try to cut the ribbon.

"The Zoo": hungry students pack into the cafeteria at lunch under Mr. Anderson's watchful eye.

A loud grumble erupts from the depths of your stomach — second block is going too slow. It is only ten to ten, and I'm already hungry! Is the clock ever going to reach eleven o'clock? Grumble, grumble . . . I wonder if the guy behind me heard that.

When lunch time finally does arrive, we are privileged enough to sit in the newly renovated cafeteria. The quick and orderly line-ups are a pleasant change from the two, sometimes even one, holes in the wall where our orders used to be taken. When our fries and slurpies arrive, we can sit among semi-tropical plants and Toulouse-Lautrec prints (while some of us still pine away for the Seventies mural that used to grace the wall).

If it isn't -30°C outside, we can walk down to Whyte Avenue — definitely one of the pluses of going to Scona. We then choose McDonald's, the Bee Bell Bakery, or one of Whyte Ave's many cafes (for those of us in dire need of a cup of coffee, and good conversation). In the spring and early fall, picnics and catching brief suntans out on the lawn are other possibilities. Both give us a well deserved break from classes, and keep us going until, once again in fourth block, the loud grumble returns again.

Looking Good!

Fashion: The mode of dress, manners, living, etc. . . prevailing to a society. Or: to give shape or form to. No matter how you say it, fashion, clothes, and style are part of our lives. Each person has his or her own personal vogue. Whether it's what's popular, or you're striking out on your own, you are what you wear. Some opt for the nouveau hippie look, with flared, patterned, ripped or styled jeans and any manner of shirt. There are still the ever popular leather jackets; some even stray from the traditional black.

Dancing slippers, hiking boots, Nike's and loafers are commonly seen treading the floors of our fine hallways. Van's are certainly the most popular sneaker, and just last year Doc Martens were a rare sight; Doc's are now a trend. As are hooded shirts, big belts, euro-fit jeans, coloured jeans, anything beaded, ethnic articles and jewelry, rings, big shirts . . . wait — is there anything that isn't O.K. to wear?!

A common denominator will always be jeans, whether the original Levi's or Guess? or Buffalo, Bugle Boy or brand-less (no name, etc. . .), most everyone owns a pair of jeans, and wears them to school.

This year colour has come to the eyes of the manufacturers, and thus to our students. Red, black, navy, and original denim blue, all adorn the students at Scona.

Even with these "norms" everyone seems to have a look that's all their own — to quote a Sprite commercial — a personal fashion sense that is usually creative and interesting, to say the least.

Even More

Events of '91/92

In the drink: Instead of having a last dance, the S.U. sponsored a lunchtime carnival. Hotdogs, popcorn and watermelon were all free, as was participation in the dunk tank (Mr. Hoffman is shown here), milk bottle toss, dart throw, visits to a psychic, and more.

Where's that teammate? A mini-triathlon was held for students, who could enter in various categories: mixed, all-girls or all-guys. Cyclists rode after the swimmers were out of the pool, and runners were last.

Easing the Transition

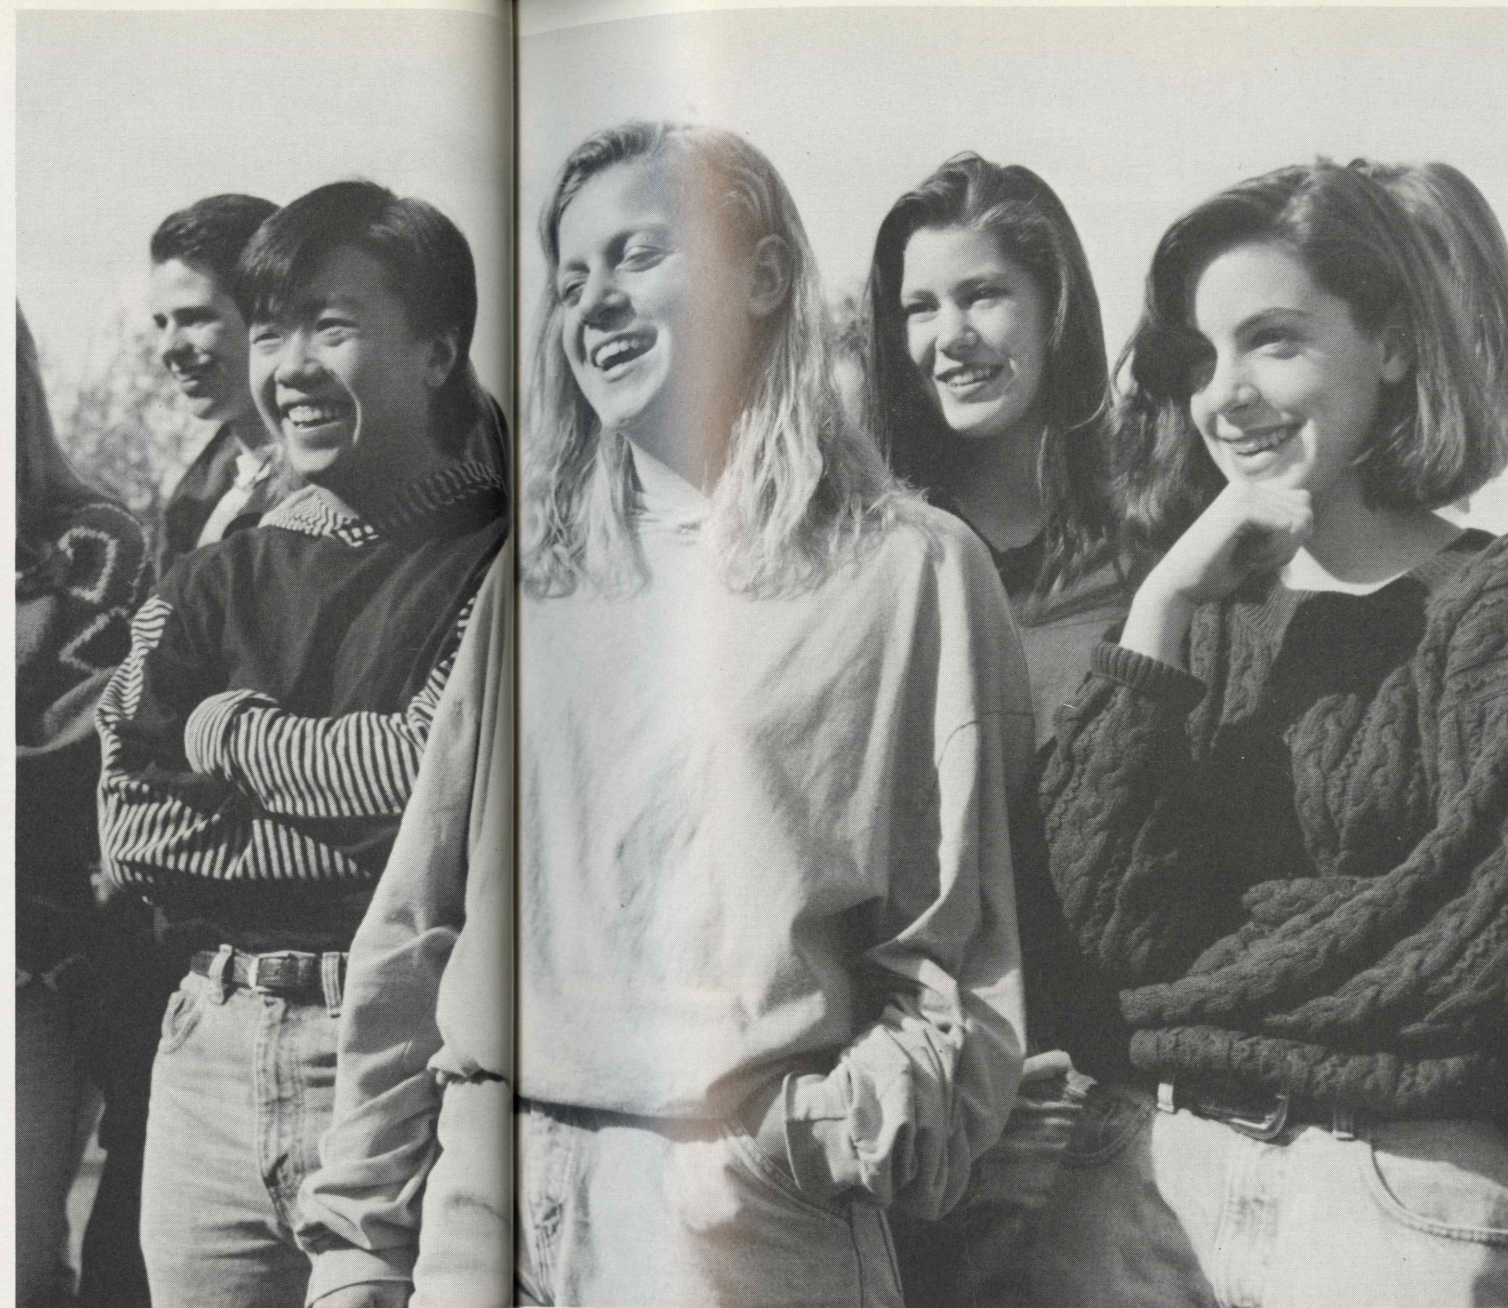

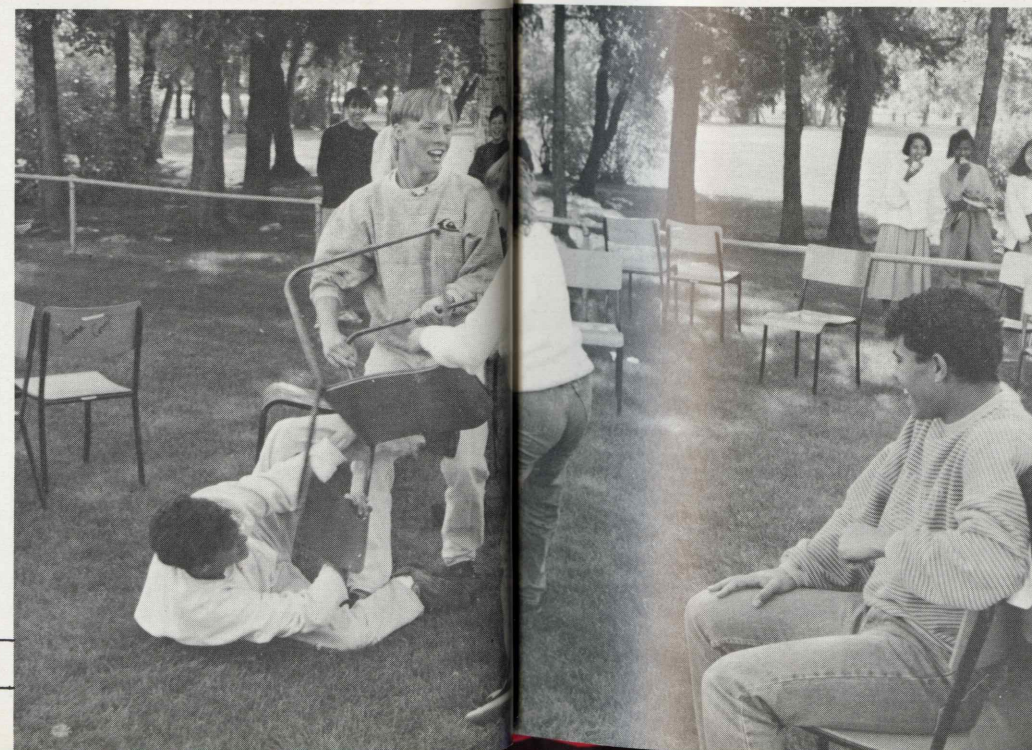

Oh, no! It's the month most dreaded by anyone between the ages of six and twenty-four . . . September. With it comes a new start to yet another school year. Grade twelves anticipate the upcoming Grad, their excitement held in check by the thought of having to struggle through Departmentals. The new addition (tenth graders) look upon September as the door to a different world filled with new friends, teachers and experiences. And those entering grade eleven? Well, it's just another year filled with homework, tests, and . . . parties!

Scona started the 1991-1992 school season with Welcome Week. Clubs day offered the chance to find out about and join different clubs and activities. During lunch hour, various relays and games were held such as head-on-bat and musical chairs. And a barbeque was also held in order to help ease the transition back to a less than carefree environment! Do you remember the assembly with the motivational speaker? Hilarious, don't you agree? The highlight of the week was the Friday night Welcome Week dance — always the most popular one of the year; the large gym was crowded, and the whole place rocked. What a great beginning.

The Twilight Zone

This is when the scariest and weirdest of creatures appear, and they all come out to the large gym to do the craziest things! Competitions involving food and blindfolds are the most popular, being both hilarious to watch and fun to participate in.

Scario eating was first; plates of the pasta were set on the ground in front of blindfolded partners. The clock started, and speed-team-feeding began. Next day, after being blindfolded again, people knelt down to find black licorice in whipped cream — with their teeth. And what student union sponsored activity week would be complete without the infamous head-on-bat event? This time, eating orange jello at the other end of the gym added to the challenge. Dizzy contestants wobbled their way to the orange slime with amazing results.

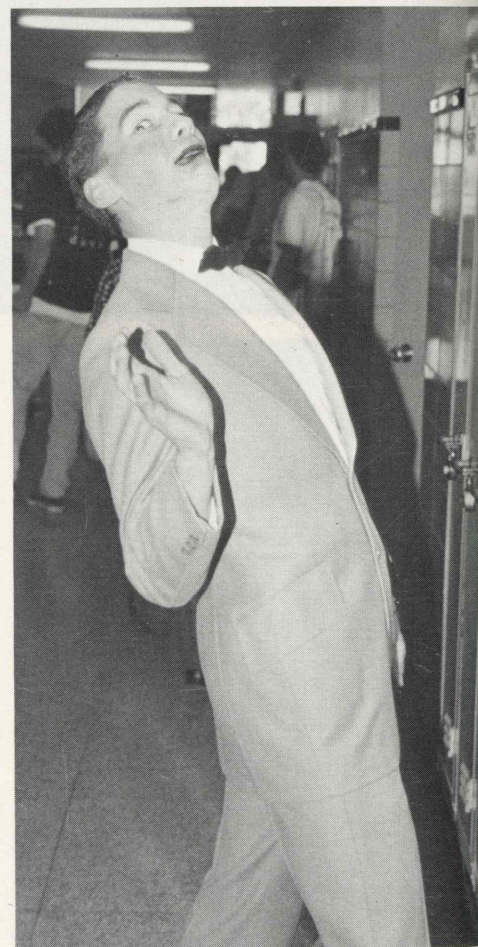

Everyone was encouraged to dress up on the 31st (much to the surprise of most mothers: "Haven't you outgrown that yet?!"), with the incentive of fabulous prizes. Despite outside comments, there was a good turnout, and some really . . . uh . . . creative costumes. Finally, the dance. On Friday night, everyone had a blast; the perfect ending to a most unusual week.

— Samara Jones

"Oh Christmas tree, oh Christmas tree . . ." Another participant in the dress-up craze, Rachel Brown gets a head-start on the Christmas season.

Can you see the difference? Jon Bell as Pee-wee Herman.

Jessica Demars gets mummified in the Halloween toilet-paper wrapping contest at lunch.

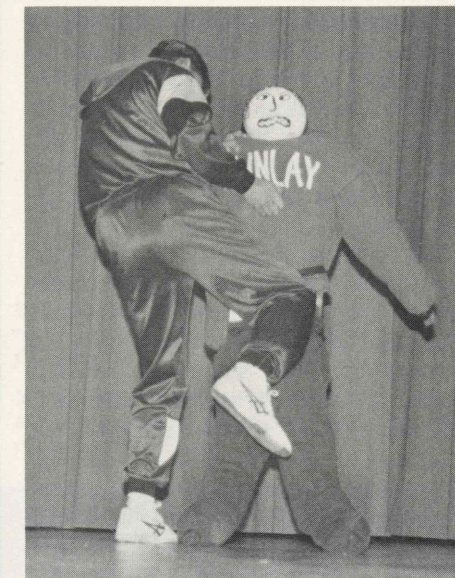

Where's the mouth? Whoever was feeding John Moss the scarios couldn't see him, either, so there was bound to be a degree of dribbling! The S.U., however, thoughtfully provided all the contestants with garbage bag aprons.

... we talk all day ... The mouths of everyone in the debate club are, of course, wide open. This time, however, it is to give their support to Scona.

Did someone say Ainlay?! The Sr. Football team tackles a suspect at the pep rally.

Does this need an explanation? Clayton Miles gives the Titan effigy a piece of his mind.

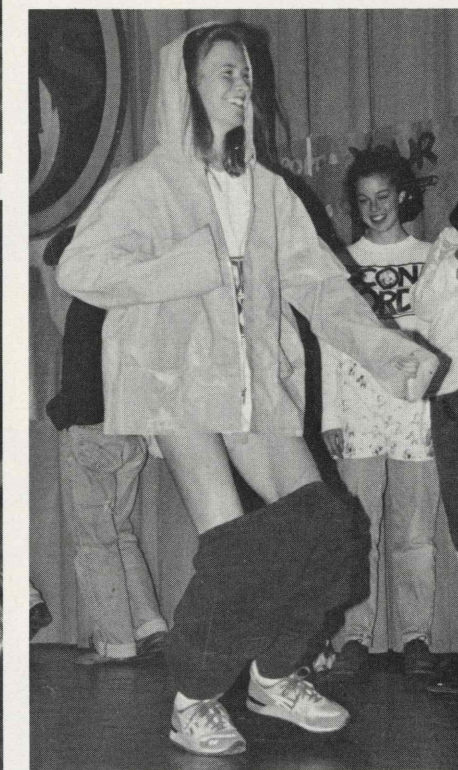

Scoooooonaaaaa!!

"SCOOOOONAAAAA, SCOOOOO-NAAAAA!!" (People seated on the main floor and in the bleachers do the wave and yell, stomp and clap wildly). School spirit and pride in our teams and clubs were demonstrated at the annual pep rally, which is held every fall to make us feel superior to the rest of the schools. And aren't we?! By far the most popular assembly of the year, the talents of the S.U., debate club, junior and senior, boys' and girls' volleyball teams, the cheerleading team, the swim team, the cross country running team, the junior and senior football teams were showcased as the ten commandments of Scona were read.

"S-C, S-C-O, S-C-O-N-A, let's go!" The crowd didn't care that they were interrupting the proceedings somewhat. Skits and cheers by the teams ranged from a variation of Jeopardy, to disco, to crossbows and chain-saws used for the yearly slaying. With a reputation for being supportive, our fans showed up at all the major events of the year. And with a record for winning titles as much as we do, it's not hard to figure out why school spirit is such a big thing here.

To the rescue: The Students' Union and everyone's favorite mascot demonstrated their commitment through short skits.

Rain or shine: Rachel Brown demonstrates the Cross-Country Running Team's spirit and determination against the elements. The team won their 18th consecutive city championship.

The cuddly approach: Laura Snowden, Sherri Antoniuk, Marcy Blake and the rest of the Junior Girls' Volleyball team proved later in the season that huggable mascots don't necessarily coincide with easily beaten teams!

Christmas Capers

Scona's annual Christmas Lit served many purposes. It certainly motivated a large portion of the students to make an appearance on the last day of classes before the Christmas break. Secondly, it brought out the Christmas cheer in all. And, it gave everyone the chance to see and experience some of the talents of fellow Lords.

The performances, which ranged from Rob Engel's unusual "it's a gas" to the classic "My Girl" by the Five Guys in Nice Ties (who also had dance moves to accompany their singing), included bands, soloists, air guitars and jazz dancing. All the performers put in a great deal of effort in order to make the Lit a success once again, living up to Scona's "Tradition and Excellence".

Nicholas Nickleby

"A bad play, but a great show."

— Jacob Banigan (Ralph Nickleby)

Well, maybe it wasn't the best adaptation of Charles Dickens' classic story of young Nicholas Nickleby, "... the sole support of his widowed mother and lovely sister Kate. The little family came to London seeking happiness and good fortune, alas, fate was unkind ... " (Vincent Crummles, scene 1) However, a terrific cast and crew were able to produce a great show from the "O.K." script.

Some of the lines, like Vincent's first speech, were corny. And some were cut at Miss B.'s instruction or after the actors refused to say them. The most popular line among the cast was, "I was a crafty hunk of cold and stagnant blood," spoken by Ralph Nickleby (the evil uncle) when comparing his nephew Nicholas (our gallant hero) to himself at the same age. Even though everyone liked it, it was taken out at Jacob's request (but he did deliver it in one or two shows).

"It was long and hard, but it was worthwhile."

— Maya Choldin (various characters)

Maya comments on the amount of work, effort and time that was devoted by every person involved in the play. Rehearsals started well before Christmas, with the pace picking up about a month before the show premiered.

"In those few weeks we were in the drama room more than I care to remember. At least four hours after school, with weekends added on top."

— Samara Jones

(Ninetta, the Infant Phenomena)

The experience of being in this kind of production is not easily forgotten.

"At first the small, close knit groups tended to stick together, but nearing the shows, the insecurities disappeared and a comfortable atmosphere prevailed.

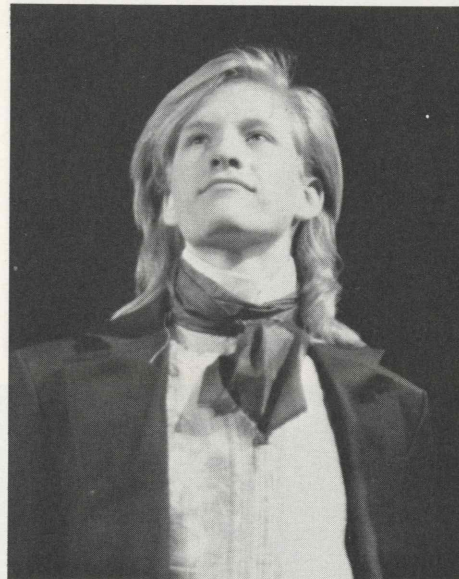

— Nicole Roy (Newman Noggs)

"People who had never even spoken to each other were working together, and as a result, many long lasting friendships materialized."

— Kelley Matthews (Kate Nickleby)

Each person came away from Nicholas Nickleby with new friends, theatrical experience, and a definite sense of accomplishment.

One Act Festival

For three nights the Scona stage premiered the work of our Drama students — six directors produced seven shows. A tremendous amount of work was put into each play. It was the director's responsibility to find a script, or in Jacob's case, write his own, and open auditions were held where directors chose their casts. They ran rehearsals, designed the sets and lighting, made programs, and some even acted in others' plays or in their own . . . The Frog Galliard and Poohtrait of the Artist were the two chosen to perform at the City Festival. Both Darcy Murphy and Jacob Banigan won Certificates of Merit for acting in The Frog Galliard, and Jacob won an additional certificate — Playwriting for Poohtrait of the Artist.

The Spirit of The West

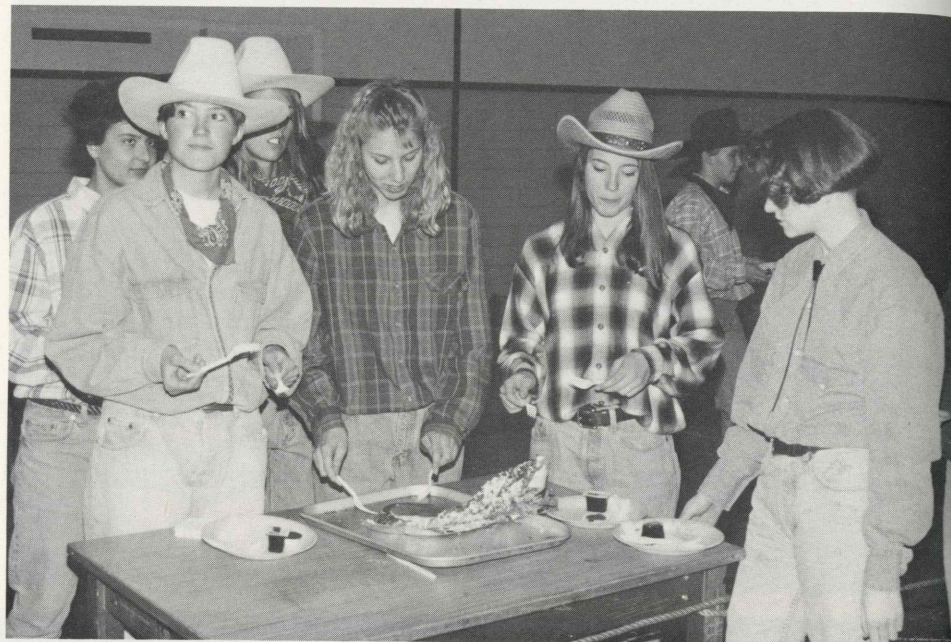

On Friday, April 24, Western Day arrived and transformed students, teachers and the administration into cowboy look-alikes; stetsons, boots, kerchiefs, plaid, denim and leather reigned supreme! To start the day off right, everybody was invited to an early, hearty breakfast where pancakes were served hot off the grill. While everyone was chowing down, entertainment was provided by those students who were really into the spirit, as they got up onto the stage and performed their versions of the great western hits. Then it was business as usual until lunch time rolled around and people started to gather around outside for the chance to doe-si-doe. For diehard western fans and the brave, a mechanical bull provided a wild ride; the feat was attempted by many and accomplished only by those who simply refused to be thrown off! Those of us who were scared by the wording in the waiver form (which was quite lengthy and professional looking and said, among other things, that the company was not responsible for . . . deaths?!) stood around and yelled our encouragement. And laughed . . . Naturally, every aspect of the event was a howling success.

Oh, give me a home . . . Mike Underschultz and Clay Miles, who perform for nearly every theme day and Scona festival, don't miss the Western Day breakfast.

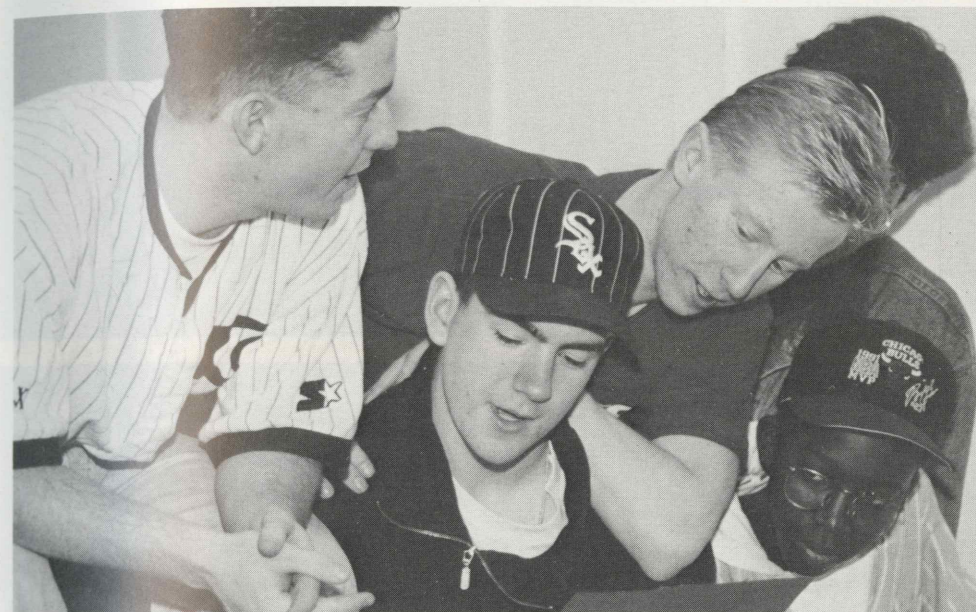

Romantic Red

The smell of romance was in the air. People covered in reds and pinks. Couples gazing into each other's eyes. And those without a Valentine felt worse than ever! You guessed it . . . February 14th. Throughout the week prior to Valentine's Day, balloons were sold to be delivered on the special day; you could send one to your love or to a friend. And, as an added bonus, you could send them anonymously to that cute guy or girl whom you had been admiring, without the threat of being exposed. At lunch hour on Valentine's Day the Dating Game took place in the Scona Room. Who sat on the other side of the chalkboard? Well, why don't you ask a few revealing questions? It was an hour filled with unexpected queries and even crazier answers. The Valentine's Day dance, held as a fund raiser for the Grad Council, featured two live bands — The Colour Black, and Scona's own The Shapes of Things. And for those of you who didn't attend because you didn't think that the music would be the type that you could dance to, you were sadly mistaken!

— Jenifer Horvath

Ladies, here are four of the eligible bachelors. Greg Ambrose, Cory Gates and Mike Ward review what they have to do for the Valentine's Dating Game.

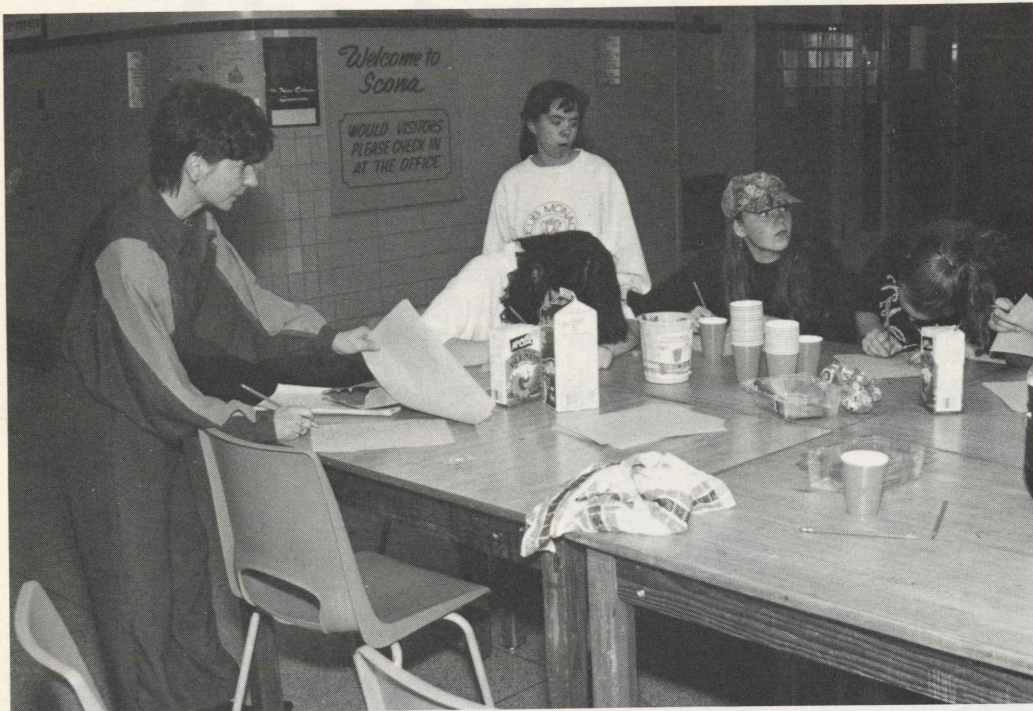

Valentine's Day captures everyone's hearts. Jenifer Horvath and Sebastian Gratton get caught up in the romance of the evening.

The crowd admires the Dating Game contestants and tries to guess which ones will end up together.

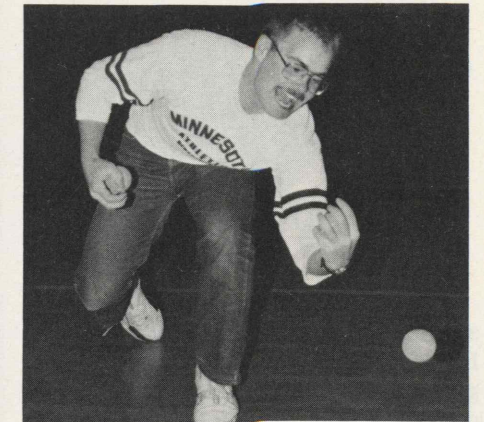

Sweating it out: Julie Davies, Sarah Zimmerman and Nairn Richards unleash their talents at the poetry sweatshop.

The famous New Orleans Jazz Connection, featuring Tommy Banks, plays in the extremely crowded Scona room during a lunch hour performance.

Co-ordination needed: found in the gym, Mike Sokoluik tries his hand at the juggling lessons offered during Fine Arts Week.

Arts Abound

Spirits were high to begin with, due to the fact that this would be a four-day week! But student morale was raised even higher as a result of the lunch hour activities that were picking up. Fine Arts Week ran from April 13 to April 16, during which a welcomed excitement entered the hallowed halls.

An abundance of ethnic food fairs provided tasty alternatives to the usual selection in the cafeteria. Tastebuds satisfied, you could venture down the halls listening to various types of music; the concert band, Hot Fudge, jazz bands and other groups filled the halls with harmony.

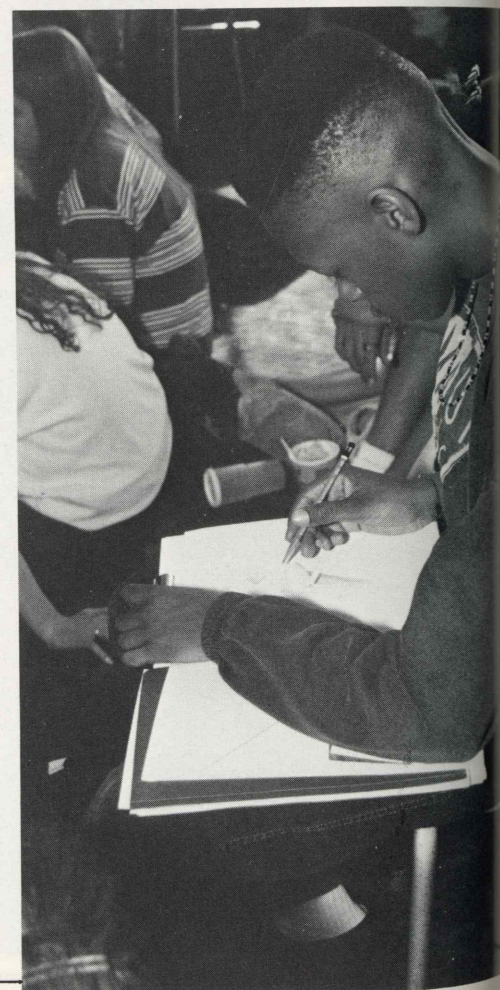

And those who wanted a real hands-on experience of Fine Arts Week weren't disappointed either. Poetry and short story sweatshops exercised the talents of budding writers, paint games for those who are so good already that they didn't have to use their hands, and for the truly co-ordinated, juggling lessons were offered.

Well-known authors dropped in to share their thoughts with students interested in writing, and films and displays could also be found in classrooms around the school. And of course perhaps the biggest privilege of all was the chance to see the renowned New Orleans Jazz Connection (featuring Tommy Banks) live and in person in the Scona Room.

Basically the four-day week was jam packed full of unique goings-on, places to be and people to see. It gave the pastime of wandering aimlessly around the halls a point, and through the opportunities for everyone to experience various fine arts, the week flew by even faster.

— Darcie Holmes

The artist at work: Ateker Owane expresses his impressions of the Jazz Connection on paper.

Hot Fudge (a teachers' group), here with one of their latests additions — Mr. Goldie — sing out loud and clear at "the bend in the hall".

Look, mom, no hands! JoAnne Johnston stifles a giggle as she tries to paint with her mouth.

Evening Movement

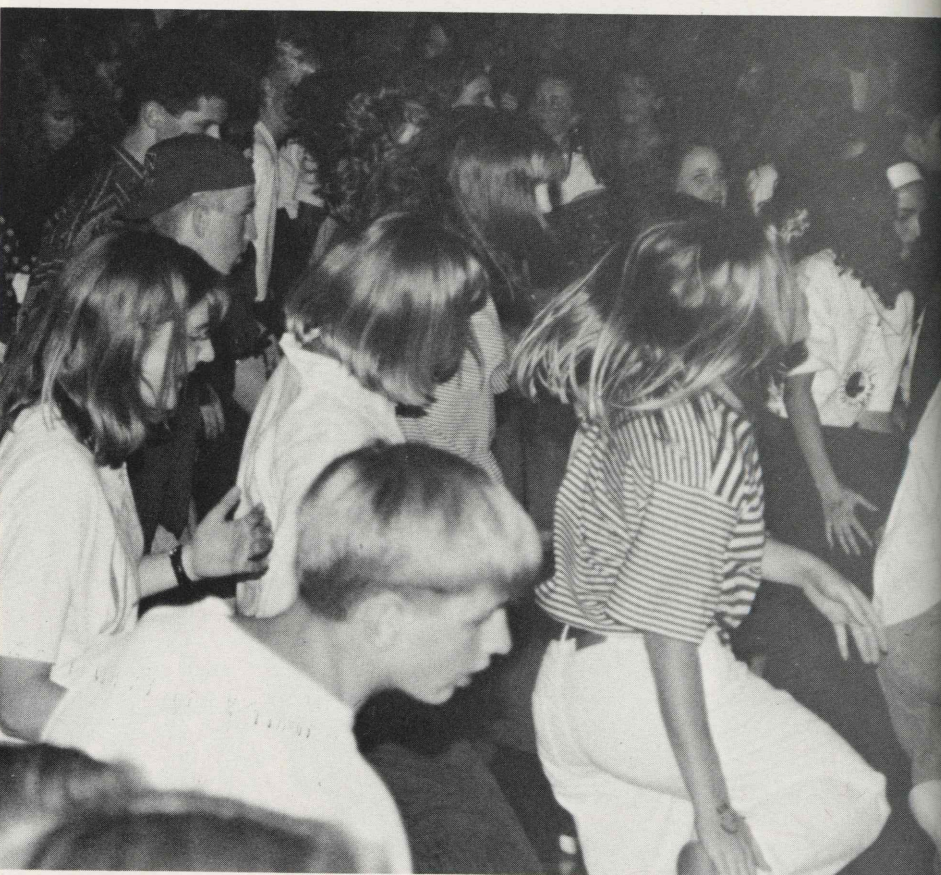

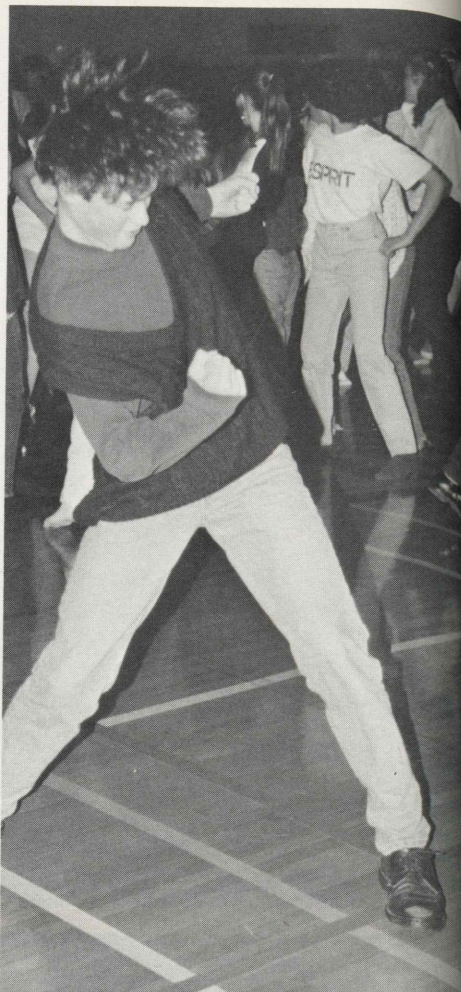

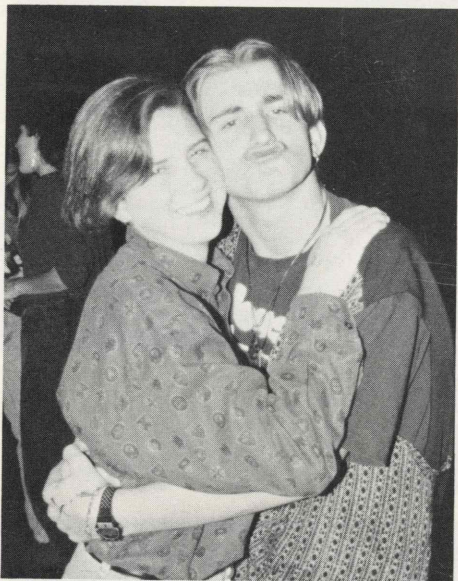

It's another Friday lunch hour. You are walking down towards the Michener Entrance and there is a huge line. What's going on? Bonk! It hits you — the dance! You've forgotten again, and pleading's the answer. After scrounging up money from friends you wait in line all lunch hour. Finally, you have the tickets in your hands.

Spirits soar high; everyone anticipates the dance. Finally, eight o'clock comes. You and your friends rush to get in early, forgetting that nothing ever happens before nine. The music pumps and the gym fills with movement. It's like a high school soap opera. Emotions range from sadness to extreme happiness. People get swept up in the moment but at twelve, like Cinderella, the magic disappears.

— Jenifer Horvath

Caught in the swing of things: Rob Ashworth gets into the music at one of the dances.

Martin Bundy exemplifies the crazy atmosphere at Scona dances while Jennifer Brown tries to control her laughter.

"Do the hokey-pokey, turn yourself around . . ." The chaperones joined the students on the dance floor at the egging-on of the DJ's.

Here's the only time you can use something you learned in social dance! The mob "slaps leather" at the Welcome Week dance.

Fanfare in Trio: Being a composite high school, Scona's academic subjects include not only the "traditional" ones, but ones such as band, desktop publishing and Spanish. Calvin Huber and Michelle Boroweiki on the trumpet and Robert Jenner, playing the cornet, participate in an annual concert.

A + ACADEMICS

Another typical day in the life of a Math 30 student! Most of the students appear to be working in Mr. Taylor's class.

The Essay Contest

"Arrrrgggghh! Another 5-page essay assignment due when?!" — cry of the overworked, undergraded English student.

Essays, book readings, Shakespeare plays and oral presentations — such is the stuff of which English is made. Whether you are in English 13 or English 30AC, the work piles up. How many of us know "the horror, the horror" of that minimum 4 minute oral assignment on the American Dream as it pertains to Mickey Mouse?

But there is a good side to this course — class trips to the Citadel to see live theater (and, coincidentally, an entire afternoon off), the privilege of seeing movies in class, and those nice, long class discussions that enable the less enthusiastic to slowly sleep their way into oblivion.

Obviously it's not all fun and games. English entails a combination of reading and analytical skills; this is supposed to give the student an increased perception of the world around him. It's a lot of work, but we students take it all in stride!

Social Studies, a class where one may partake in learning the fundamental aspects of our society; of learning how our country works.

(Student just waking up) "wha . . . , is the film over? Who took my notes for me?"

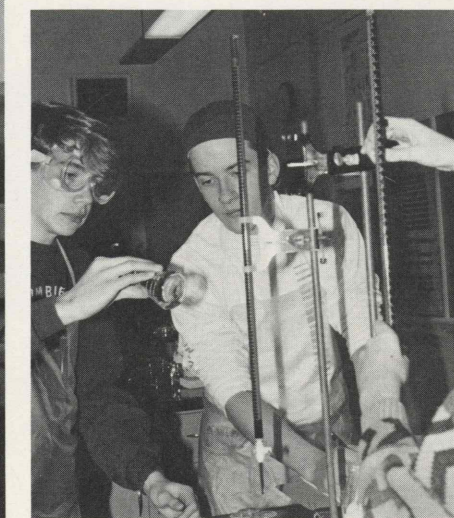

Throughout our High School years, Social Studies is a fact of our lives. In these courses, students learn about our nation and how it works, as well as the political beliefs of other nations and how they influence the relations with one another. We then learn how to apply this knowledge to the problems we face today. This will be especially important with the collapse of the Soviet Union and the reunification of Germany, not to mention the official end of the Cold War. With all the essays, tests, films, and note-taking, it has proven to be one of the most fast-paced courses that we take.

— Cara Gillard

But, Mr. Speaker! Hannah Goa, Shauna Moore and Chris Laxer of the opposition go on the attack during a mock Parliament in Mr. Wallace's Social 10AC.

Biologists . . . or is it Chemists? . . . at work: Dennis Staniland and David Eagle perform a titration in Bio 30AC.

Math and Science

Parabolas, geometric progressions, ranges, probabilities . . . all of those fun mathematical concepts just keep coming! By the time we have finished the dreaded Math 30, we have had the opportunity to mess around with TI's fascinating graphing calculator, which boasts a variety of strange and wonderful buttons (that can easily entertain us for the full eighty minutes).

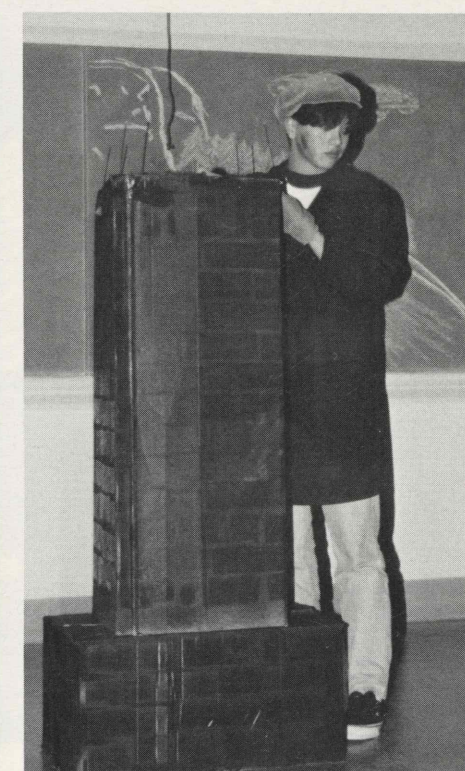

Biology students go from studying cells and dissecting frogs in grade 10, to genetics, ecosystems and evaluation at the 20 level, to an in-depth look at the human body in Bio 30. This course is topped off with the dissection of a fetal pig.

Chemistry classes teach all about elements, bonding and electron transfers, and by Chemistry 30, students learn how to predict reactions more accurately using a completely new system. As it turned out, we had been "lied to" in the past two Chem courses!

The physics students deal with force, momentum, gravity, circular motion etc. They apply mathematical formulae to everyday situations such as football games, car accidents, travelling kumquats and aliens landing on earth; how much energy is required for the Starship Enterprise to get back to planet Zenfrok — or was in Vendar? Ask Lieut. Worf!

Every class is a definite experience. Even if after the long (!) summer students have completely forgotten that they ever knew what an electrochemical cell is, they will never forget being in Mr. Cheng's front row, Mr. Yeske's geranium names, tales of Mr. Kulka's duckies and Lumpy Hill, or of Mr. Harker's football career.

— Darcie Holmes

Poetry is boring? Not in this English class! Trevor Yu (the chimney sweep) and his other group members present their piece to interested classmates.

Scalpel, please: Mike Unterschultz and Jen Sulkers perform one of the more dreaded tasks in the Biology stream — the dissection of a pig fetus.

Business Education

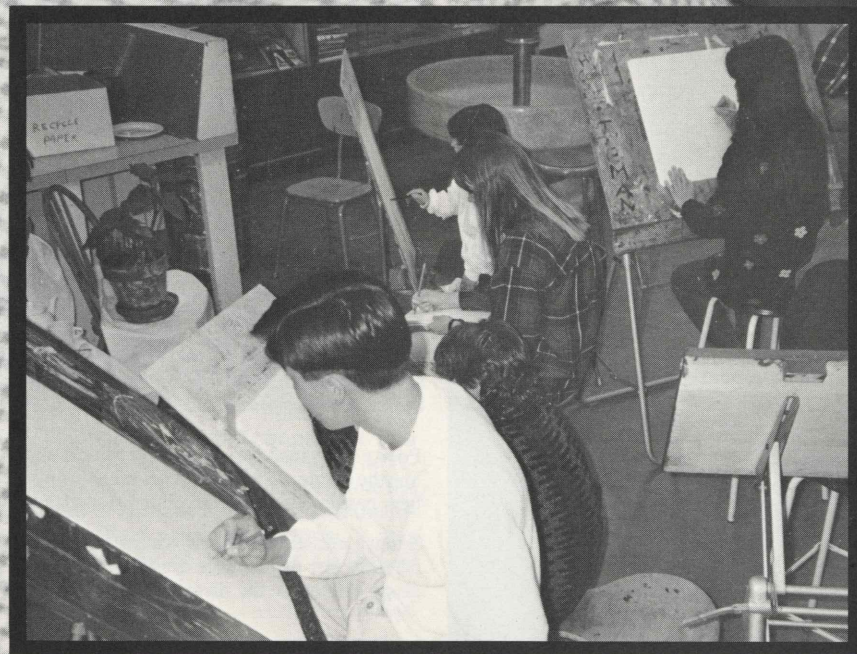

"Students who graduate from High School in the 1990's without the ability to use a computer are simply not preparing themselves for the real world." Well, that warning, written in your handbook, was enough to scare many of us into registering for computer processing courses, where we soon digested programming skills and learned about computer generations. Meanwhile, "A, A, A . . . S, S, S . . ." could be heard coming from the rooms in which beginner typewriters perched over electronic typewriters, anxiously trying to keep their eyes averted so as to let their fingers do the walking. And in Accounting, aspiring C.A.'s or those who heard that this is the easiest Business Ed. course to take and thus earn credits towards the Business Education certificate, were introduced to business transactions and banking for one-owner businesses. It was, however, the Law students who had the most fun, the field trip to the courthouse being the highlight of the course. And a class in which one is almost encouraged to argue can be a welcome change!

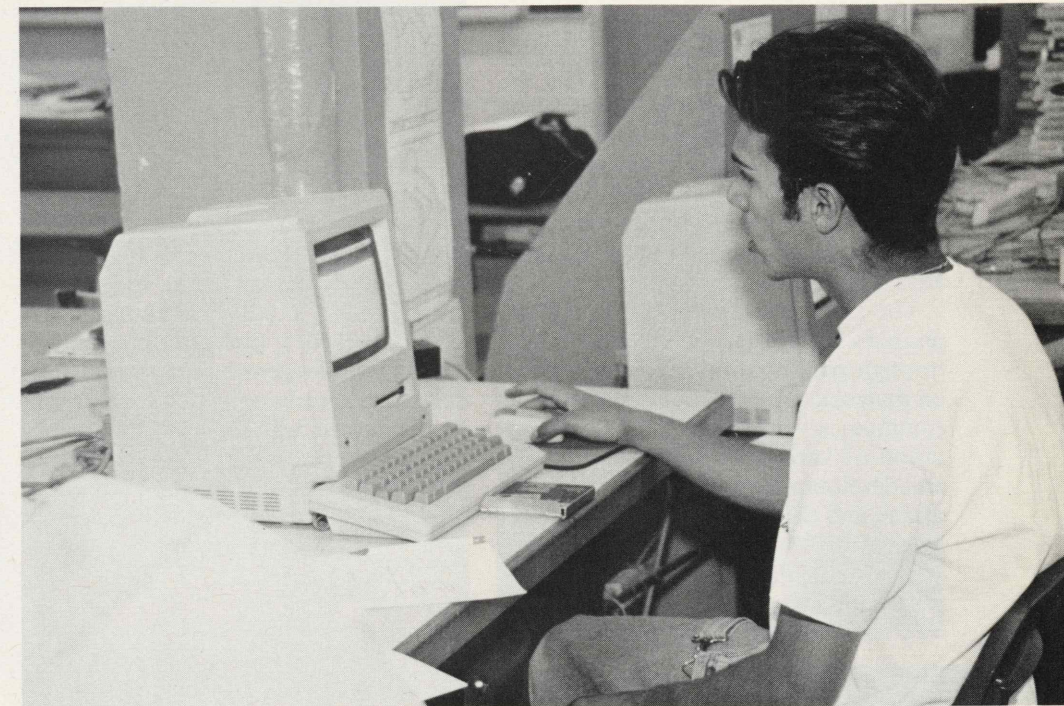

The court is now in session: Al Scott, Olga Kosnovsky and Jason McLeod take part in a mock trial for their Law 30 course.

In the making: Nicole Kiffiak uses pastels and patience to create her piece of art.

(inlaid) Art 20 students busy themselves with their still life sketches.

Computer art: Steady hands are required for Desktop publishing projects, because mice are used instead of more ordinary drawing instruments. Richard Carreiro, hard at work.

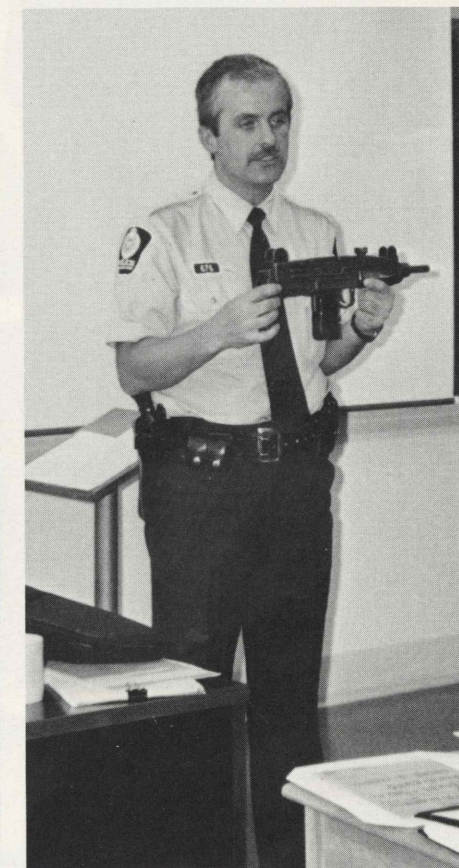

Fine and Practical Arts

You do learn more than how to make a cupboard or the perfect soufflé! In a world where the employer demands an experienced workforce, Home Economics and Industrial Arts are the perfect courses, because students can gain practical hands-on experience that will help them find work, or aid them in gaining entrance to Universities and Technical Institutes. Tailoring, Dress For Success, Electronics, CAD, and Silkscreening are just a few of the courses that are available to students. And no longer are they dominated solely by a single gender; both guys and girls are found in the classes (some of whom were probably taking that particular course in the hopes that they would find themselves in a room full of members of the opposite sex!).

Art is also challenging; students spend time trying to create meaningful pieces through self-expression, and the works of other artists, both modern and classical, are also pondered. In addition, emphasis is placed on technique and the criticism of one's own work, as well as that of others. Regardless of which course you choose, it is certain not only to provide an escape from the more formal classroom beat, but also to be useful.

— Cara Gillard

Guest speakers are always a pleasant surprise, as they offer a new twist on what would otherwise be a too-normal class. The Law 30 class is addressed by an Edmonton police officer.

Language, Drama, Music

An excellent music program is offered; students build self-discipline, concentration and even co-ordination. The atmosphere is always lively especially at lunch when students spend their time practicing. Concert bands and jazz bands competed and perform throughout the school year, and this year, had the honour of hosting the New Orleans Jazz Connection.

The three-year Drama program emphasizes knowledge of self and others through participation in and reflection on dramatic experiences, competency in communication skills through the exploration of various dramatic disciplines, and development of an appreciation for drama and theatre as a process and art-form. Class activity (and Drama classes are undoubtedly the zaniest here) ranges from improvisation, to studies of character, acting, and learning theatre history.

Four foreign language courses are offered: German, Spanish, Latin and French. Vocabulary and verb conjugations haunt everyone at the 10 level, and by the time students have moved on, more time is spent writing, reading and speaking. And the dreaded Labo is used frequently in all the courses (remember having to spend an extra five or ten minutes there, looking for a tape recorder that worked?). But, although foreign languages were gruelling (although that depended greatly on which teacher you had) everyone was consoled by the fact that being able to speak more than one language would look great on a resumé. And it could make persuading parents to let you travel to Europe that much easier . . .

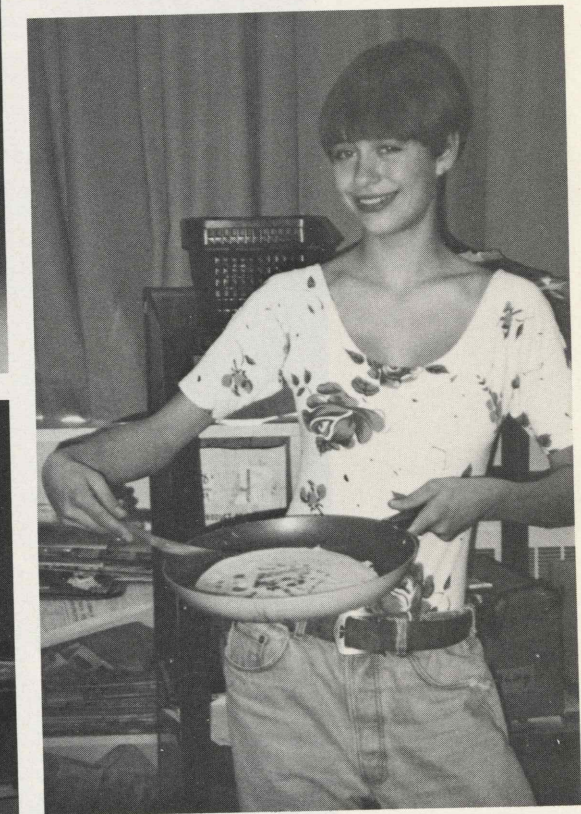

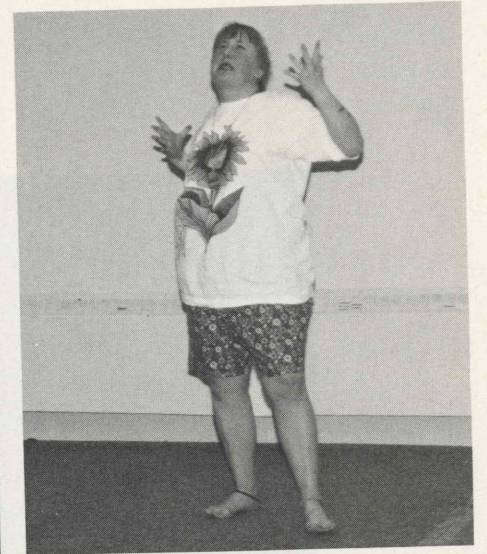

To be or not to be . . . Etienne Bourigault (as William Shakespeare) and Rob MacNeill (Father Crozier) already suited up for their play.

Ooh la la! Crêpe au chocolat. John Yates offers Angela Ng a bite.

Making waves: 1991/92 is the year that the swim team won their 6th consecutive city championship — and became the first team in the city ever to do so. Here, Darcie Holmes swims the fly and does her part in the victory that Scona won by over 1000 points!

Cross-Country Team

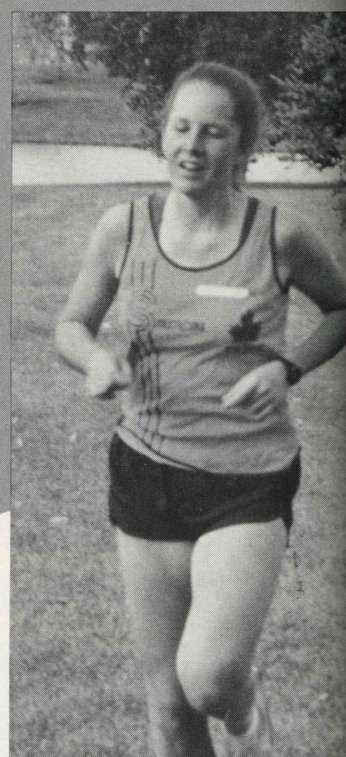

Once again, Scona's Cross-Country Running team's season was filled with outstanding individual and team results. The Scona girls came away with a clean sweep by team, scoring first in every meet of the season. This included victories at the Rookie Meet, Two Events Meet, Relay Meet, All Events Meet, and the City Championships. Our girls easily swept the junior, intermediate and senior categories at the cities, helping Scona claim the 18th consecutive championship. A total of 18 girls ran at the Provincial Championships in less than ideal conditions (wet snow). Congratulations to all of the girls involved.

The Scona boys also had a very successful season, finishing first at the Rookie Meet, and second at the Two Events Meet, Relay Meet and All Events Meet. The intermediate boys placed second, helping secure #18. A total of 10 boys competed at the provincials. Scona's 28 athletes helped to score the Edmonton area team to a strong second place finish, only 2 points behind Calgary.

Congratulations to all team members and special thanks to Mrs. Thresher, Mr. Bohnet and Stacey Gibb for helping me in my rookie year as head coach of the program.

Keep running and stay fit!

This was a good season for the Junior Football team. The team made the semi-finals, and really came together as a "team" this year. There were many great individual efforts and terrific team spirit. Much of the team is returning next season and the coaches are looking forward to great things.

- 3) All aboard! Jason Simpson, Chester Pfunder, Odin Pedersen, Lamont Stanley and Nathan Higginson.
- 4) Charge! The junior team takes on Eastglen.
- 5) Braving the elements: Unfortunately for both teams, early snows did little to make playing more enjoyable.

To become a strong Senior football player you need to have courage and the ability to control your fear of the 320 pound linesman growling at you. A football player must also be strong physically, being able to withstand 436 tackles and still be willing to go back onto the field. Crazy, isn't it?! After playing one season with the Senior team I have become a team player. I have learned to respect my teammates and dedicated coaches. Even though we didn't win many (any) of our games, the players always supported each other. The Senior football players who are graduating this year will always look back on their football team with pride. Those who will be joining us from the Junior team will have the dedication and competitiveness of the past players. The present Senior players welcome and support all those Juniors and others coming up to the Senior team.

Together we hope to keep Strathcona's tradition and excellence alive.

The Senior Girls' Volleyball team had an outstanding season, finishing first in Premiere Conference league play and winning all of our 4 tournaments: U of A, Calgary, Okotoks and Salisbury. Thanks to Norma and Janice for a great season full of big games, great saves, digs and kills, not to mention potluck dinner. Who can forget about channel 6 and the Van rides with KLF — "What time is love?"

Great year, girls.

The Junior Girls had a very successful season this year. They competed in two tournaments finishing third and first. They played in the premier city finals losing a tough match, three games to two, against Harry Ainlay. The girls worked very hard all season long, congratulations.

This year's team had the difficult task of defending their city championship title. The Lords continued their domination of the tournament scene, winning the gold medal for the fifth time at the KLO Classic in Kelowna, as well as winning the SAIT and Lethbridge tournaments. The Boys defeated Spruce Grove to advance to their fifth straight appearance in the City Final. They lost a tough match to the Titans but have remained a strong force in the province.

From "silly (LS) saves (SB)" to "power layups" (JD) to very few "uncomfortable moments" (AK) the Lords Senior Girls' Basketball team finished up with a sweet season (third). We participated in two tournaments, placing third in Medicine Hat and second in Sherwood Park. With the help of 3's (ML), towering defences (S>), "bulldozing jumpshots" (CH), teamwork and a lot of tape (CW), we were able to defeat Ross Sheppard by three points in double overtime. We then proceeded to Semi-Finals (Premiers Conference) to lose a heartbreaker (four points) against McNally. It was a great season, best of luck to the grade twelves and to the rest, see ya next year. Special thanks to our coaches and their stats. P.S. — KH, learn to drive!

— Laura Snowden

The girls had a very good season this year. They competed in the J. Percy Page three-on-three tournament and the Red Deer tournament. The season ended with a heartfelt loss in triple overtime to the Ross Sheppard T-Birds in the semi-finals. Congratulations on a good season.

All in all, the 1991-92 season was a challenging one for the Senior Basketball Lords. Faced with season-ending injuries and a lack of height, the Senior Boys relied instead on quickness and hard work. We had our share of successes, placing second in the Medicine Hat tournament and surprising many of our opponents in compiling a near -500 record. With seven juniors and three returning seniors on the squad, we are looking forward to capitalizing on our valuable experience in a fantastic 1992-93 season!

- 6) Noise for the Lords: James Turkington, Kevin Przyswitt (with horn) and Heather Schurman. Non-swim-team members often hop buses to the Kinsmen Sports Center during the day to cheer on the team.

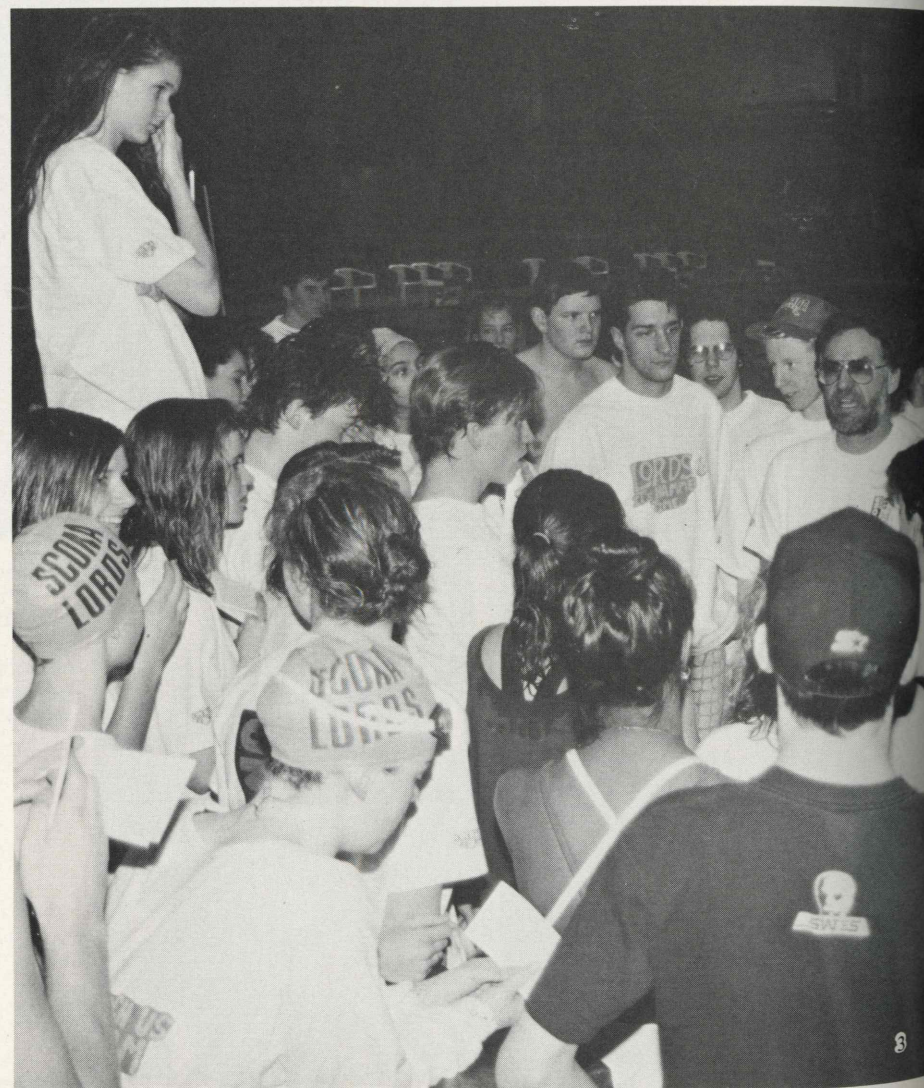

Number Six!

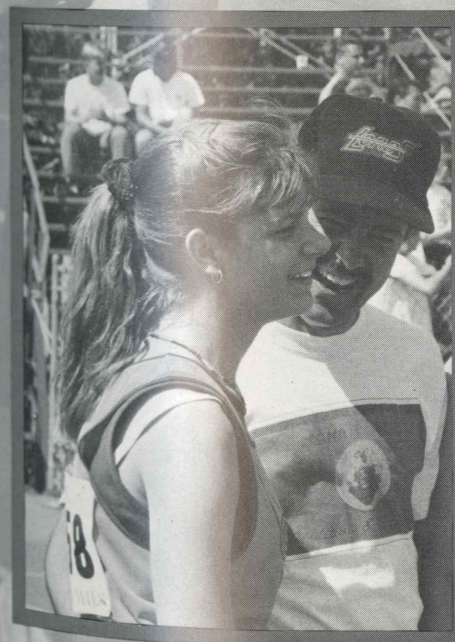

The Scona swim team is a team that follows in the Tradition of Excellence at our school, winning more city championships than any other school in the city. The swim team, however, is not about winning. It is a team that has fun and a strong sense of comradery. We all go out and laugh and joke and do our best, which, after all, is everything anyone can expect. Congratulations to everyone who helped bring us to #6 and to everyone who tries to bring us six more. Thanks for another great year.

- 1) A great start: Kim Sorenson.
- 2) Mark Versfeld
- 3) Listen up: There wasn't much doubt about the fact that the Lords would dominate the swim scene again, but there was still a lot of pressure on the team to break a city record. Coach Richards gets everyone motivated.

First place! Hish Hussein, John Bell and other members of their relay team celebrate their victory.

Tara Kamp and Coach, who retires as Coach this year after 12 years of coaching our track team.

Was there ever much doubt? Our twenty-first consecutive City Championship and another Guinness Book Record was won with a total of 629 points (and all the events were swept — by us). Who came second? Eastglen with 119. It may have seemed an easy victory in the eyes of the spectators, but the 1992 track season definitely had its problems — and for awhile, we were worried about whether or not we would remain on top of the heap. Everything started with a lack of members, and the Phys. Ed. department in particular was surprised at the record low. Shortly after things were getting underway, snow and other bad weather cancelled the mini-meets and as for attendance at the practices after school . . . well, it just wasn't. We pulled through, as usual, to regain the title; and it was particularly sweet for Coach Kirkland, who retired as Coach this year after twelve years of coaching the track team.

"We've created kind of a monster and the monster continues to grow," said Coach. "I think the tradition really helps." And our tradition does help — everyone knows that this is one of the things that makes the students try to perform their best and enjoy themselves while doing it.

Good luck in the future, Coach, thank you, and congratulations to all who participated on the team this year!

The Scona Badminton team had a very successful rebuilding season in 1992. An enjoyable year was had by all, with everything being topped off by a second place standing in the Public League Division and a third place finish in the city championships. The team also saw two members, Scott and Cori Young, represent Edmonton (zone 6) in the provincial meet. The team had a great year and sees a promising future. Thanks to the coaches, Mr. Cheng and Mr. Nielson.

— Tracy Hackbarth and Taso Garanis

Scona Cheerleaders are very hardworking and dedicated. Practices are usually three times a week, but can increase to three hours a day when competitions come around. All of our enthusiasm paid off, giving us second place in the Redmen Invitational, FIRST at Tri-Prov, second at Cities which was hosted by Scona, and fourth at Provincials.

Cheerleading is not just for girls. Although we had an all-girls' small squad this year, guys are encouraged to join.

Cheerleading runs through the majority of the year. This year we cheered for the football teams as well as at an Edmonton Eskimos' game.

A lot of team commitment, energy and hard work is needed, but as was demonstrated this year, every bit of practice time paid off in the end.

— Lila McTeague and Shannon Oliver

1) Behind the scenes: Jodi Forster, Tracy Hackbarth, Coach Cheng, Coach Neilson and Craig Trendel.

2) Whap! Dennis Lin

3) Lila McTeague and Shannon Oliver, beaming about the team's great finish.

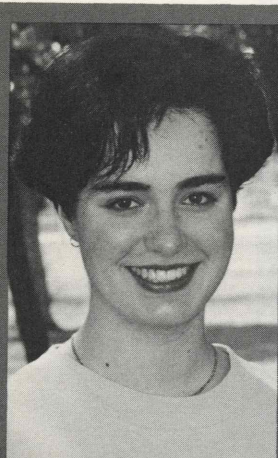

4) To shout and to cheer: Scona's most spirited group raises the morale of the whole school at the pep rally.

Hard at work: Only a few find their way onto the "club" that competes at the Science Olympics. At the West Ed water park, Howard Cheng and Eric Anderson build a raft out of wood, string and coke bottles. The team was a medal winner at the competition.

Well, we've all been through quite an experience this year, but . . . we did it! This is the most difficult project I have ever been involved with, but despite the downsides (seven-hour Saturdays and burning around the school hallways at lunch to track down missing photos and articles) I can safely assume that everyone whom I worked with for the whole year gained something from their position as an often-flustered yearbook staff member! We all made mistakes, but great things were also accomplished.

Of course, there are numerous people without whom things certainly would have flopped. Congratulations and thank-you to everyone on staff who was committed enough to stick it out until June, to several unofficial staff members — my close friends who conducted surveys and wrote articles (and saved me heaps of time and anxiety), to Mr. Gerun for being our Head Photographer, and to Mr. Woodrow and Mr. Blond, our advisors who gave up much of their personal time to oversee every detail, and for being so understanding when deadlines weren't reached! Thank-you to Rebecca, the Assistant Editor, and special thanks goes to Jenifer and Stephanie Ulich for helping me so much in July to finish things off.

I hope that no one minds the differences that were implemented in this yearbook — if you do, look through it again after your initial surprise and appreciate the changes on your second time around! See you next year, everyone, and enjoy.

Jessica Asch, S.U. President

The Student Council of 1991-92 was very strong. Our activities and events that have been hits of the past (Welcome Week, the Christmas Lit and of course our dances) hit again this year along with some newer activities (the Battle of the Bands).

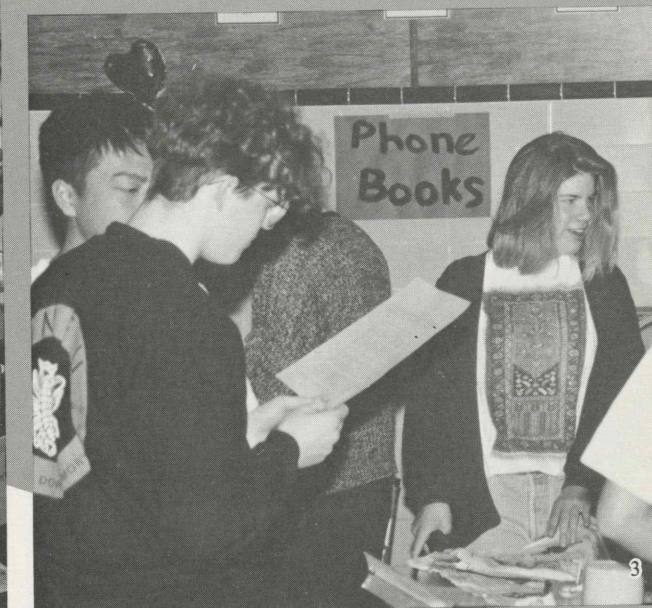

The best part about being President were the other members of council. We all worked together to make events happen, so a special thanks goes out to them for all their hard work and dedication. Another key person in helping the council run is our advisor Mrs. Rutland, so a special thanks goes out to her as well. Thanks also to the Home and School Association for their help with our events.

I hope everyone can remember High School as a place where there was always something to do; I also hope that we created as many memories for everyone as Student Council brought us.

To argue with your parents — and win! This was the ultimate goal of the 15 who joined the Scona debate club. After an initial workshop, the team entered many debates, with topics ranging from Gun Control, to Meech Lake, to Hatred. Scona students fared best, however, in Impromptu Parliamentary debates held at J. Percy Page. By the time regionals came around, the club had dwindled to six members, Mr. Gerun, and Ms. Krawchenko. Susan Brown and Sheila Small did extremely well at the regionals, and advanced to the provincial round.

Other activities included the Model Legislature at the Legislature buildings, and once again Scona hosted a speech tournament which was very successful. The Debate Club had a triumphant year, and is looking to bigger and better things for next year.

— Marika Warren

The Amnesty International Club was started at Scona because several students and myself felt that human rights were important and that we could do something to help other people around the world. In an effort to help men, women and children who are imprisoned unjustly, sexually assaulted, tortured and murdered due to no cause of their own, our club wrote letters, raised money and educated ourselves and the school as to what Amnesty International is all about.

We can change the world.

Every Thursday at 3:00, a little group gathers in Miss Simmonds' room, patiently waiting for their ride out to Amberlea Meadows. They are the riding club, a group of dedicated students who receive instruction in the fine art of dressage. Here they learn proper riding form, jumping, and horse and tack care; all under the watchful eye of Ellen, their instructor and Head of Amberlea Meadows (who also happened to be a Scona student). Run by Miss Simmonds and Mrs. Harries, the Riding Club has proven to be a challenge for the students, whose reactions vary from "lots of fun" to "it's an experience!" Whatever the reaction, they all agree that it is something they enjoy.

— Cara Gillard

This year, Scona's ski club had 75 members, who went on four Friday evening trips to Rabbit Hill. The ski club also sponsored several day and weekend trips to the mountains.

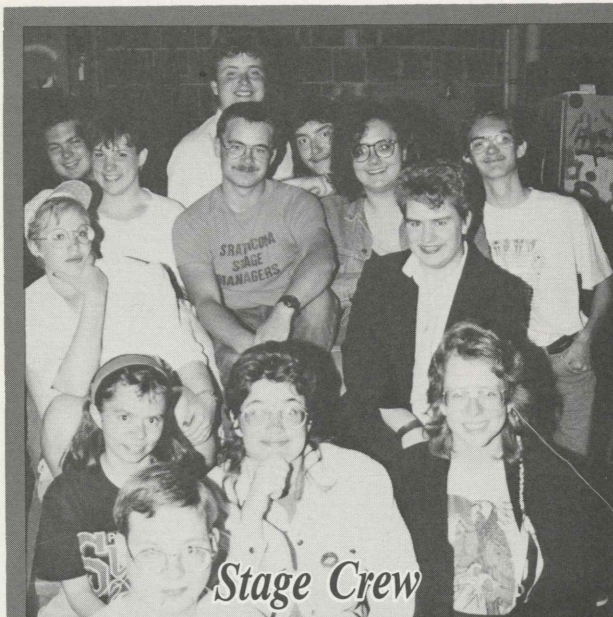

The regular Friday excursions occurred about a month apart and started in November. Due to Edmonton's unstable weather, the conditions were different each time. Most of the skiers felt confident enough in their skills to just take to the hills, and there were a number of snowboarders as well, 15 to be exact.

Mr. Cebuliak and Mrs. Garner were the brave souls who chaperoned each bus trip, and even seemed to enjoy themselves (the ski club would like to thank these two teachers for giving their time to sponsor this activity.)

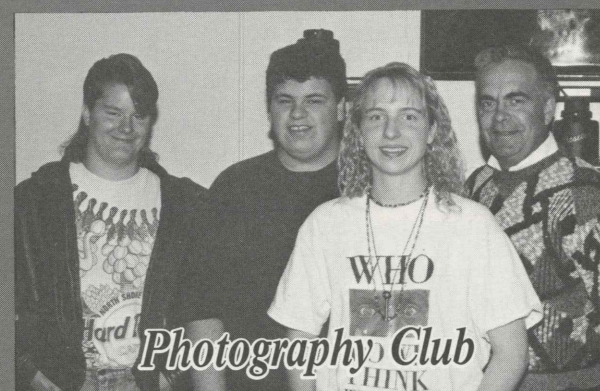

Fortunately, few injuries were encountered as just about everyone skied safely. The ski club was a successful venture, where students had a lot of fun, and we hope that it will become another tradition at Scona.

Young Life's first year at Scona was a great success. Many students came out to enjoy the fun things Young Life has to offer and to reach out to their inner selves with the help of adult leaders and Faith. With the continued effort of Miss Love and the enthusiasm of all the students involved, Young Life will continue to be a part of the Scona Tradition.

The Christian Fellowship club had many of the same members.

The Photography club met Thursdays at noon, primarily to learn more about photography. Of course, the members received hands-on experience; after pictures were taken, they developed their own negatives and had the opportunity to make enlargements.

'Tis after the play Nicholas Nickleby, and all throughout the stage, voices of consternation were being upraised. 'Twas the Stage Crew, that lot of confirmed wackos and nuts, who doth utter weird words, like "They want us to do what?"

and, "The stage has eaten the props!" "No way!"

(And upon questioning, the stage has only "Burp" to say.)

Despite these difficulties, the show must go on, and there are many things that still have to be done.

But to their tasks they do not cower, to quote, "The difficult takes a few minutes, the impossible? Give us half an hour."

— Cara Gillard

The Stage Crew participated in the New Heroes on the Block program in Scona's entry, Eraser Displacer, as well as in the Scona and City's One Act Festival, the Drama Department's show Nicholas Nickleby, and did backstage work for the Air Guitar, Battle of the Bands, Christmas Lit, Pep Rally and all dances and assemblies.

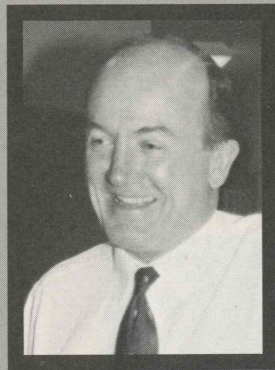

Show your pride! Ann Yew, Derek Glowacki and Rachel Brown deck themselves out in true Scona fashion to cheer on the volleyball teams. Derek and Rachel were voted in by the '92 Grads as the "epitomes of Scona".

Principal's Message

I believe that to a large degree we are all capable of controlling our own destiny and if we want to have positive experiences in our lives we will work to ensure that this occurs.

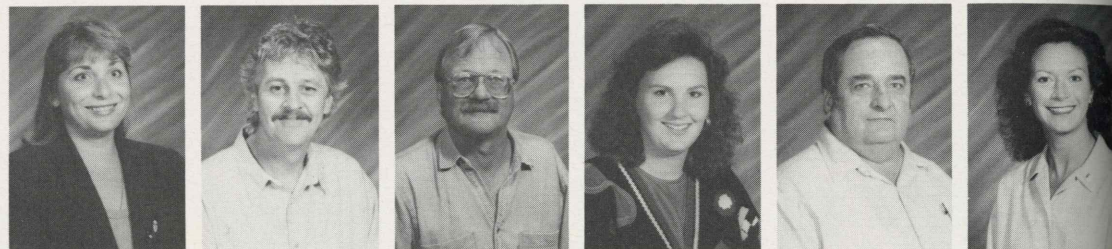

I am very proud that at Strathcona we are able to provide our students with experiences that are rewarding and satisfying. This yearbook reflects some of the positive experiences the students and staff have had this year.

I sincerely hope that the future will continue to provide opportunities for growth and success to our students who are graduating and for those who will be returning to Strathcona next year.

Waiting for the results: Sarah Schwartz, Anna Yarmon and Tania Dworkowski after the mini-triathlon. Anna (the runner) and Tania (the swimmer) along with Dennis Lin, were members of a mixed team.

Flashback to the sixties: Sage Ellis.

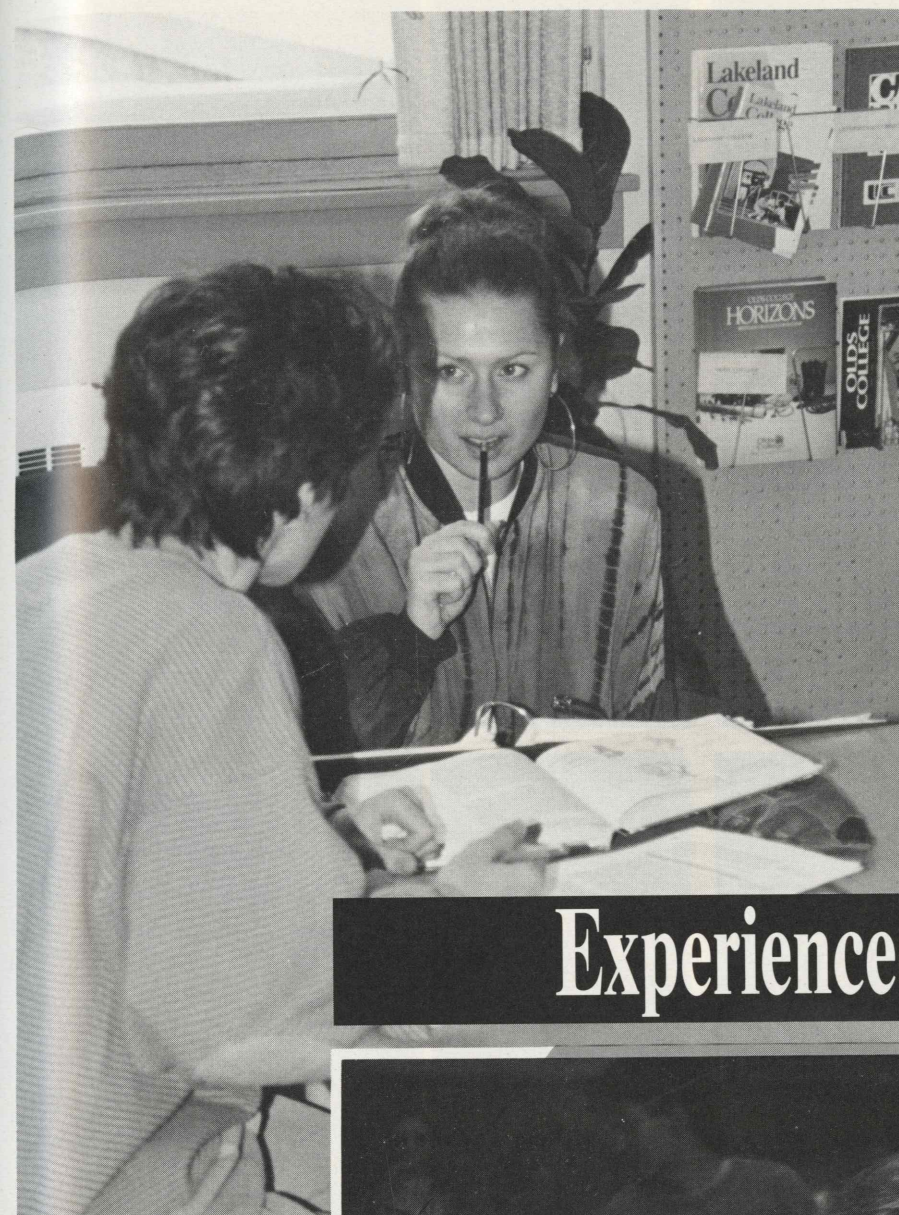

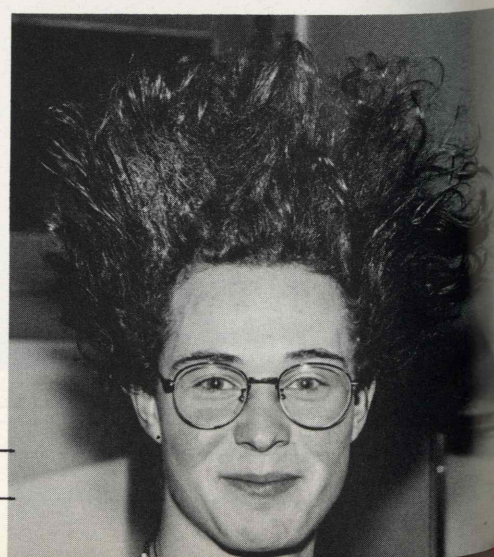

In the Conference Room, a formal atmosphere prevails — as demonstrated by Tamara Sperber and Heidi Seneka.

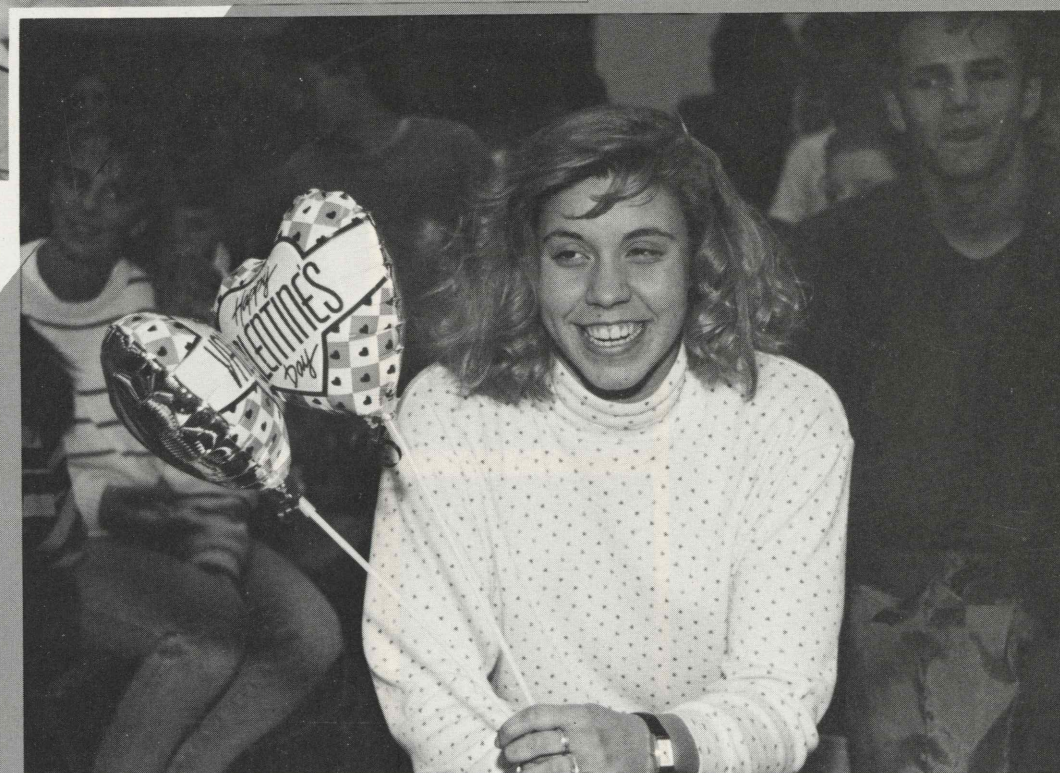

Squash! Teri Mills was in the wrong place at the wrong moment when Trevor Yu decided that Taina Lorenz should also join the pile-up.

A new statement? One can only imagine how much hairspray, gel, and who knows what all else went into the creation of Rob Ashworth's hairstyle.

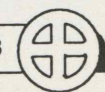

Cram Time: Interestingly enough, the Library is usually noisier than the Cafeteria, so many students, like Sylvia Kedzierska, prefer instead to do their last-minute studying in the Counsellors' office.

In the pink: Valentine's Day was marked by many festivities. Colleen Hnatiuk joins the crowd that gathered in the Scona room to watch the notorious Dating Game.

Aaron Adams

I'm worse at what I do best and for this gift I feel blessed. I found it hard, it was hard to find, oh well, whatever, nevermind.

— Nirvana

From dreams come believers, strive to find the message in your dreams to grasp all of your capabilities. The only one who can tell you you can't is you, and you don't have to listen.

Kris Aloisio

It's been a great three years here at Scona. Thanks to all my friends who made life here great. I wish you all success in the future and may all your dreams come true.

Kris . . .

Rozita Amini

Thanks for a great year! It's been fun but now onto bigger and hopefully better things! To all my friends lots of love and luck see you in the convent Sandy, Silvia, Celia, Ania and LuLu, Yeah right! To all the teachers I've had throughout the years, look what you've done! Good luck one and all!

Mary Arko

Imagination is more important than knowledge.

Make the most of the future by remembering the great times and friends you've experienced and made. I've had a memorable three years of High School and I thank you all. Good luck in the future and keep in touch. This guy will never forget you.

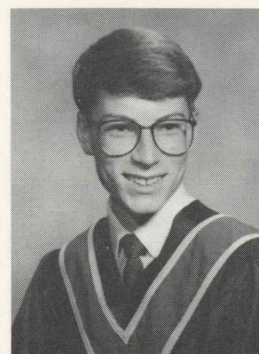

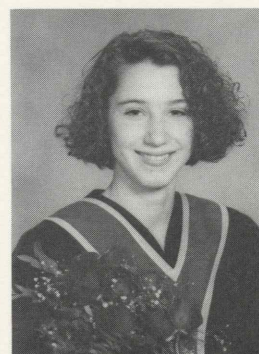

Jeffery Begg

What say you? Shall I not present the summations of my past in these few and feeble lines? Shall I not ascertain wise counsel from great men, but to pass it on to my peers in this book? "Nay" quoth I, for such things make mine eyes weary. Well, so be it; but, my beauties, remember this: you eat too much sugar.

Doron Bell

Maya Shmulevitz

To laugh often and love much. To appreciate beauty, to find the best in others. To leave this world a little bit better by a healthy child or a garden. To have played and laughed with enthusiasm and sung with exultation. To know that one life has breathed easier 'cause you've lived. That is to have succeeded.

I just moved back from Toronto in November. I saw some old friends and met some new ones. To all my friends in Toronto, best of luck, you're the best friends a guy could have. Quebec 1991, Sauble Beach with the boys on May 24 weekend. Pet peeve: people who drive under 120 km in a 60 zone really tic me off! Colleen, I like you!

Anna Singer

Here's to Chickey's, the Ambo Raveen escapades, Bob Marley, Conga lines, June 26/91, the boys of Malones, rowboats to Russia, rain dancing, TP hunts Cadillac Ranch, streaking, PRR. Thanks to HM, CS, CK, KH.

Valedictory Address 1992

Good evening parents, teachers, guests and fellow students. It is truly an honor to be up here addressing such a fine graduating class. Tonight we are assembled to honor the achievements of those students here before you. We have all waited a long time for this moment, a night in which we can finally call ourselves graduates. As each and every one of us crosses the stage tonight, we should all feel a sense of pride and a sense of accomplishment. One cannot find or win a high school diploma and for that I congratulate you all.

Once one finally has a diploma in hand, there is a tendency to think back to the events which have led to this point in our lives. We reflect on the past and all of the memories captured within it — memories that are etched into our hearts and will remain there for the rest of our lives. Although these memories will always remain dear to us, tonight we should not dwell on the past but rather look to the future. Just by being here in the room here this evening we have an advantage over most students, because we are all Scona graduates. Scona is a school that prides itself on tradition and excellence, and as we leave here tonight as graduates, we should all strive to take this tradition and excellence with us wherever we go. Whether we shine in athletics, academics or some other talent, each and every one of us has the potential to become something great. Let us not look to the future with doubt and uncertainty, but rather with optimism.

Colin Winklmeier

Nobody knows what the future holds for us, but through hard work and dedication, anything is possible. It is at this time that we should rely upon the education that we have received in order to make the crucial decisions that are facing us — decisions that will affect our entire lives and that will carry us into the future.

School is not only a learning experience in reference to knowledge and facts, but also a great step in life as we work towards our goals. School has helped refine us into maturing adults who are waiting to face life's challenges. Although education has played an important part in our lives and will continue to do so, it is ultimately the people around us who have contributed to our success. First of all our success must be owed in large part to our parents and our families. They have helped shape the values, morals, and personalities that make us the individuals we are today. These people have been our principal role models and were always willing to sacrifice something for us. Their support, patience and encouragement has been immeasurable over the many years, and for this we thank you.

Secondly, the teaching staff who were always willing to share their wealth of knowledge with us. We are all fortunate in that we attend a school in which the teachers show genuine concern and commitment for the student. They treated us like individuals and they created an environment whereby learning was made as enjoyable as possible.

Finally, I wish to mention the people that we are lucky enough to call our friends; people who are always there when you have a problem or when you need someone to talk to. It was their companionship and laughter that made the school tolerable and provided us with a reason to wake up at six o'clock every morning. Sadly, however, many of these friendships will come to an end after the last exam, as we all go our separate ways in pursuit of our dreams. Hopefully, someday in the future, our paths will cross again. But until then, I wish you all the best of luck and success.

Thank you.

... M — Hold on, I could learn how to learn in a weekend. I'm Matt Dobbs, this is Jenny Sulkers and this is what High School was really like: Day 1, Grade 10, after strolling through the Michener entrance ...

J — GET OFF THE CREST!!!

M — grabbing your new binder and proceeding in search of room 138. Which we so naively assumed would be next to room 137.

J — Grade 10? I still can't figure out the room numbers.

M — Remember hangin' out in the CAF with your friends in the pre-pig patrol era? Pleasantly gazing over at the student-painted wall mural and, perhaps if you were feeling creative, adding to its colour with the leftover remnants of your lunch ... Especially exciting items included bread with sticky condiments, and butterscotch pudding.

J — Perchance, after filling your stomach with Coca-cola and french fries, you would be lucky enough to catch some SU lunch time activities. Two of the favorites included:

M — Firstly head-on-bat, the human centrifuge — the SU sponsored drug-free way to completely disconnect mind from body. To the head-on-bat virgins in the audience, it may seem like a simple task; you run in circles, while keeping your head firmly planted on a baseball bat; you keep your body up on its feet and your lunch down in your stomach. It takes great technique. Imagine trying to run straight with the earth tilted like this ...

J — Secondly, WWF comes to Scona: SU sponsored musical chairs. Where the motto is, "If you can take it, you can have it."

M — I found it!! Room 138 — CHEM 10, next to room 201. Who would have figured? My very first Chem lab — gotta be safe. (Lab costume — gloves, shaky bear, lab coat, goggles)

J — When I look back to High School science, I don't know what its purpose will be in adult life, but I know I'll remember ... the scent of shaky bear. I'll remember having to pick out an apron after the previous class finished dissecting sheep hearts, and trying to figure out which side was the inside! Lastly, I'll remember walking down the tile-clad halls after the lab, temporarily branded by the telltale raccoon eyes and perfume de shaky bear.

M — Now you must understand that perfume de shaky bear wasn't a great hit with the ladies. So it was straight home to prepare for the big night — a school dance. It would be frightfully taboo to show up by yourself for a social event such as this. And you see, how you arrive is almost as important as when you arrive, which, incidentally, must be at least two hours fashionably late — allowing just enough time for the pre-dance refreshments out at the bleachers.

J — You are now ready for the big entrance. After forfeiting your shoes, which were skillfully guarded by armed police oCIFfers, you made your way through the hordes of bodies standing just inside the gym doors. You had a special certain someone in mind and you'd been planning this evening all week.

M — Time passes swiftly and before you realized where it had gone, the first chords of Stairway to Heaven were ringing in your ears as the sweaty bodies clung together motionless in the sauna-like gym for the last dance of a memorable evening.

J — Flashback! ("doo-la-loo-doo" three times) Phys. Ed. 30, Curling slash INDY 500 auto racing 5-3-2-1

Nintendo car music
M — But High School wasn't all fun, Mr. Manson reminded us in his yearly speech, filling us with the terror of deadlines and departmentals, frightening one and all into doing an extra hour of homework that night to escape the clutches of despair and avoiding working for the rest of their lives at McDONALD'S!

J — In fact, that speech was probably scary enough to convince the entire student population to attend classes regularly for at least two weeks which, by the way, is carefully monitored by the school's mail-out attendance policy. Every two weeks for the last three years Scona has mailed out attendance reports. Now how many of you parents have ever seen one of these attendance reports? Hmmmm ...

M — Yes, indeed, Scona breeds a collage of different characters. The teachers alone providing exemplary role models. Do you remember Mr. Adams taming the wild west riding the bull at Western Daze? Mr. Hill's attempt to gain a national holiday on Lumpy Hill's birthday?

J — Yes, it's true, Mr. Wright was actually the stunt double for Three's Company's Mr. Furley. And who could forget Mr. McEachern's truly, no less than explosive, approach to teaching English?

M — Finally we would like to congratulate all the students on receiving their diplomas, fake though they may be. And a reminder for those coming back next year: You may return your diplomas on your way out.

J — Seriously, party hard and enjoy yourself over the next few days, and please do allow everyone the same opportunity. We want Grad to be a wonderful memory for everyone. GOODNIGHT! (Picture time)

Looking Scholarly

Recounting strange events: Jen Sulkers and Matt Dobbs, with their speech and skits, were probably two of the liveliest historians Scona has ever had!

where you had been for the past three years, and what did you mean to people who didn't recognize you?

Flashes of memories, flashes of slides, flashes of cameras, Flash — three years had disappeared.

Disappeared, yes, but not forgotten. Changed by knowledge, friendships; friendships that inspired knowledge, hardship, fear, worries for the good, the bad, but most importantly, the future. The future which the Valedictory address talked of, the guest speaker talked of and the principal talked of, will be formed by changes to come, but will start only from what was spoken of by the historians.

"It's so Hard to Say Good-Bye to Yesterday" was a hit by Boyz II Men, and sung at the Commencement Ceremonies by Justin Ryan (left) and three members of the band Quick Trouble: Doron Bell, Ainsworth Prasad and Obi Nwobosi.

At last! Perhaps realization hits the hardest as one has his tassel flipped by the Principal, signifying actual graduation. Mr. Anderson congratulates Kris Manning.

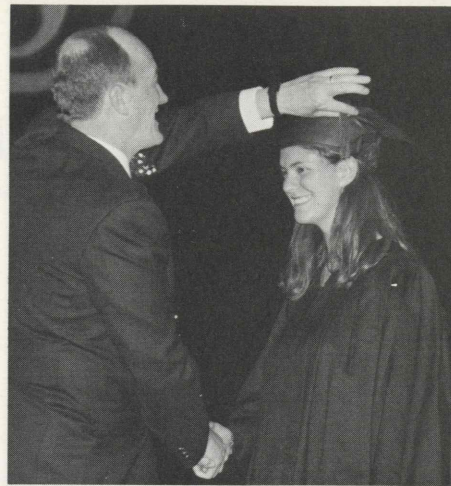

During a break from watching graduates cross the stage, pieces of music were played and sung by Nicole Kiffiak and others.

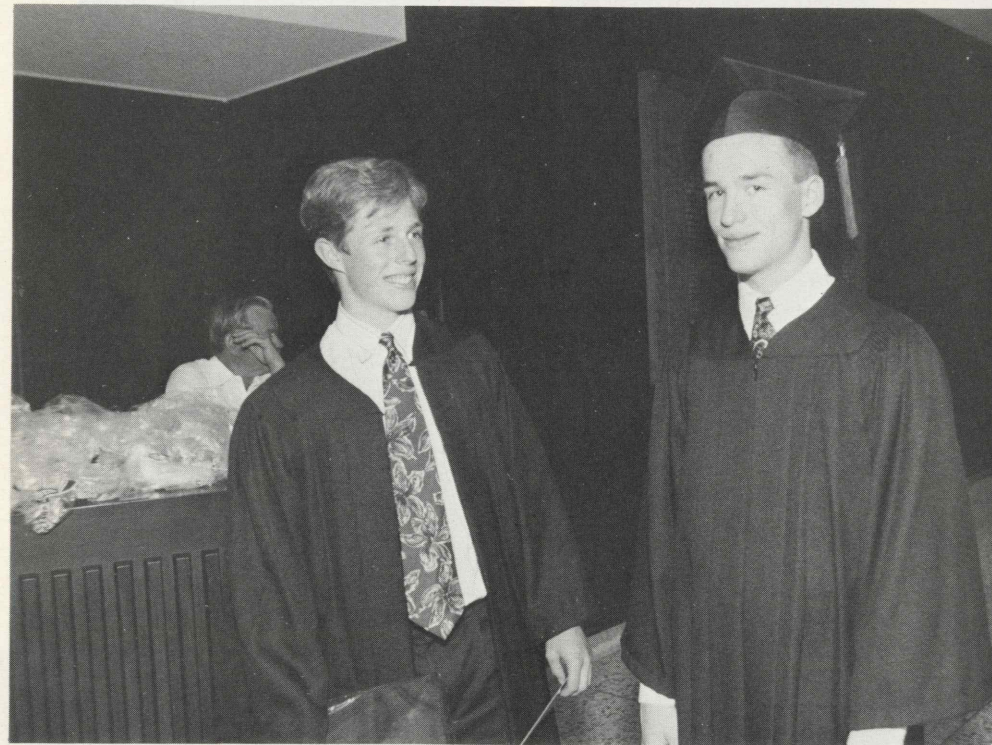

Many teachers had the unenviable task of sorting out and preventing backstage muddle! Here, Kelly Paul and Mr. Taylor.

Trying to catch some Z's: Anna Lisa Singer stretches out on the floor while Heather Mason engrosses herself in a book.

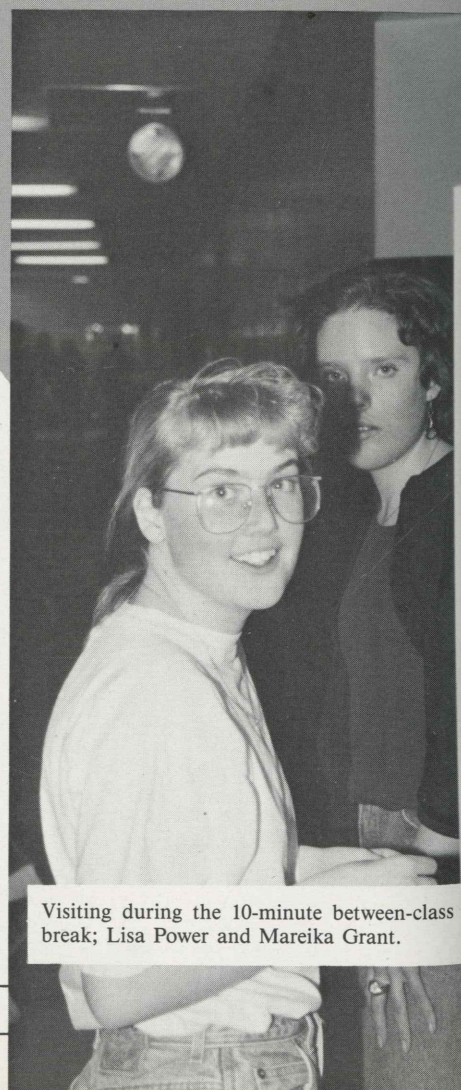

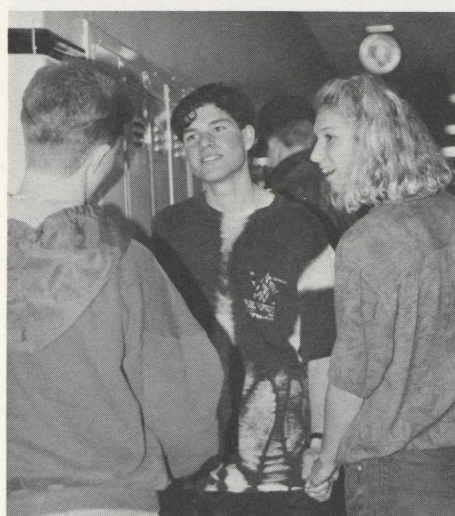

What incentive! When the Red Cross came to Scona, free cheesecake and pop was offered to everyone who donated blood. Tim Henschel and Rachel Brown enjoy their share.

From ear to ear: Pearly whites are flashed by Jill Assaly at the June Awards Ceremony.

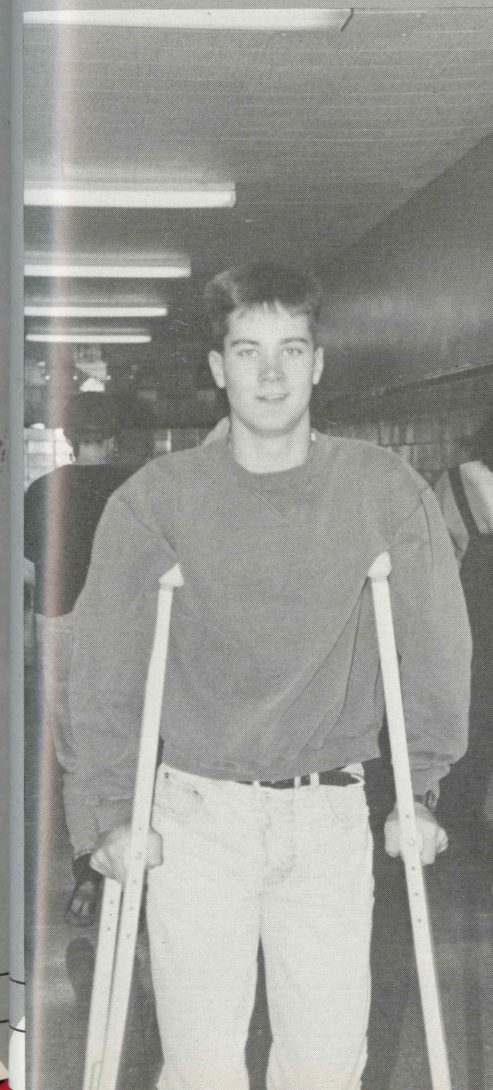

Almost there! A cyclist for one of the mini-triathlon teams, Jen Sulkers expresses her happiness at nearing the finish line.

Chit-chat: Rob Gingras, cousin Chris Gafuik and Joanne Johnston.

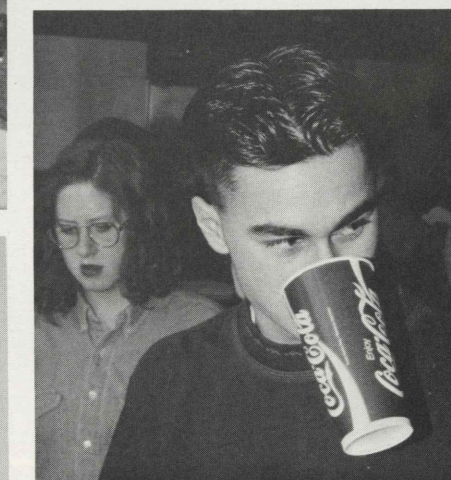

Visiting during the 10-minute between-class break; Lisa Power and Mareika Grant.

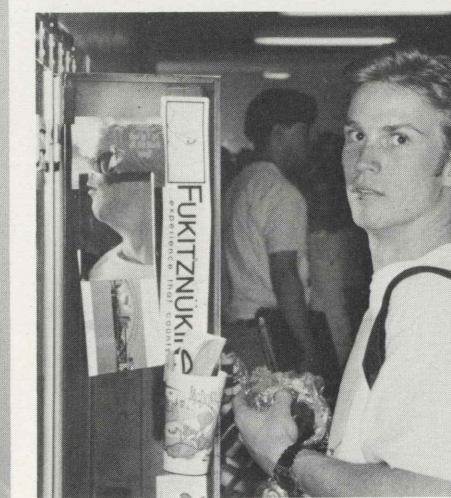

Sibling rivalry? Stephen Klar (10) is kept in line by older sister Rosanne.

An unlucky break: Scona, with its numerous stairwells, is probably one of the worst schools to get around in on crutches, as was surely experienced by Chad Kermode.

Grad Banquet

Formal scholarly gowns put aside, sequins, tuxes and general celebratory garb were donned. The transformation of friends usually clothed in a t-shirt and jeans put everyone in a mood to party — now with parents, grandparents, extended families in some cases, and teachers; later at After-grad, the absence of parents and teachers was a reason to party in itself! Yet you couldn't help feeling slightly reminiscent and grateful to them after laughing at Mr. Yeske's familiar gork stories, subtly incorporated into the toast from the teachers, and the warm reminder that "... Parents still love you, even though you have been no less than ... difficult, for the past three years ..." in the speech from Mrs. Begg's toast from the parents. Both drew laughs and tears, both were delivered from people who cared. From the applause that was given, the Graduating Class of 1992 appeared thankful — even if we did have to dance to their country music!

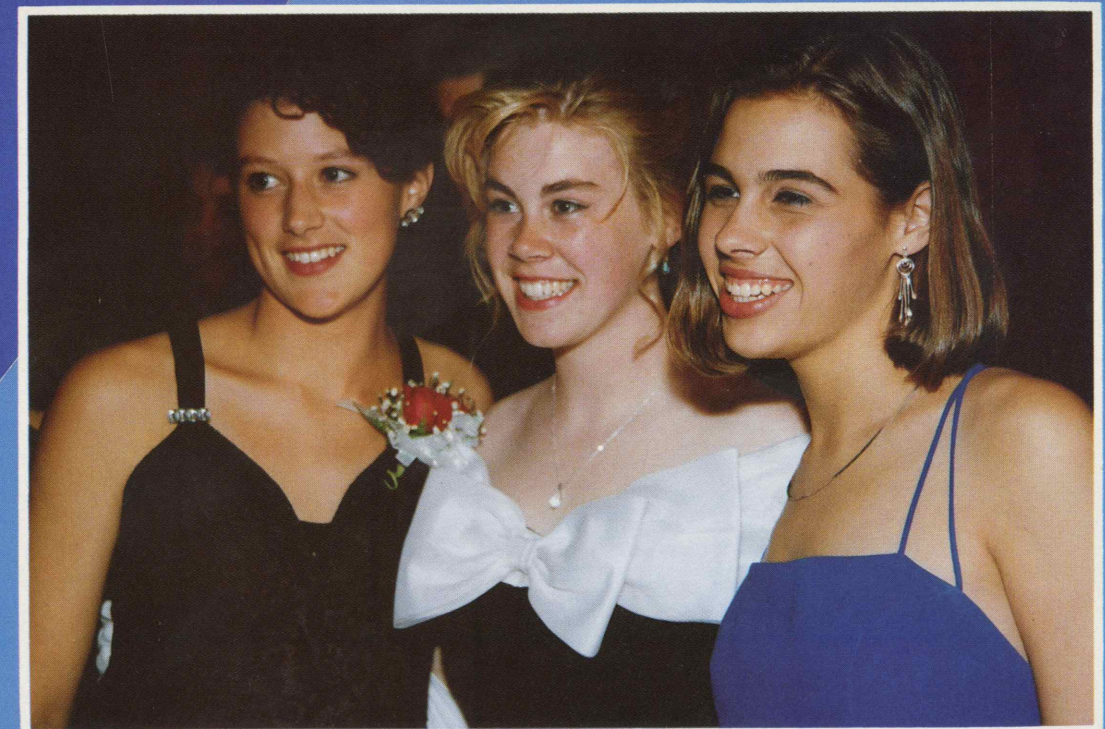

As fast as the formal clothes were put on, they were taken off in exchange for the grubbier, warmest clothes you owned, or borrowed en route to the bus. And you had better have hoped those clothes were warm, because the traditional chilly, damp After-grad evening had returned. Sober or not, no one really seemed to mind the cold, the dew, or that their friend had just passed out next to them — it was all in the name of a good time, all in the name of Grad.

Or was it in the name of Grad, considering that it was the beginning of May??? Hopefully everyone recovered by Monday morning, when it was back to school to earn the pseudo-diploma that you received at Commencement because you were a member of the Graduating Class of 1992. Whatever! It made you wonder how many of those people who crossed the stage were really graduating. Did they receive a piece of paper reading, "Sorry, try again next year"? But, graduating or not, everyone had put in their three years, and that is reason enough to party.
